Power in Opinion
Health in Suspenders
Island of Hogs, Good-Bye
Moving Pictures Teach

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921.

Public opinion apparently has some power.

The Governor of New York announced his intention to give the street car trust of the greatest American city what it wanted—the right to break a contract.

Immediately the battered, dismal street car stock went up. Public opinion expressed itself. Those stocks became more dismal than ever and fell down again. It is possible to interest Americans in public affairs by putting your hand directly into their pockets. Corporations and officials forget that.

Some person is advertising this: "Be comfortable, wear suspenders."

You may smile, but that is important advice. A man, especially if fat, who with a tight belt fastens the weight of his trousers to his highly sensitive insides, instead of putting the weight on his bony shoulders, makes a serious mistake.

The tight belt is one dangerous kind of foolishness. The high or tight collar pressing on the pneumogastric nerve and the great blood vessels of the neck is equally foolish.

"Be comfortable, wear suspenders, wear a loose collar, and give your interior machinery a chance," is excellent advice. If it helps suspender manufacturers, so much the better.

Hog Island will now finally close. The spot where hundreds of millions were spent, wasted and stolen, "may become a barren waste." Thus ends one chapter of shameful profiteering and squandering. It ought to have put many men in jail. Instead, it made them rich with the people's money, and in some cases enabled them to add medals, decorations and "patriotic reputations" to profiteering.

A barren waste where hundreds of millions were thrown away, and a small amount bid by a "junking concern" for the stuff that is left. Very appropriate.

It reminds you of the end of the huge, useless Colossus of Rhodes, broken up for the metal and carried away on camel-back by a junk dealer.

Will moving pictures injure the minds of young people and cut down the reading of good books? They will not, although John Cotton Dana, head of Newark's Public Library, one of the ablest, most useful librarians, think they will.

When our kind of writing replaced hieroglyphics, those that wrote in pictures thought that literature was doomed. Writing was made too easy.

Yet, on printed books replaced hand-written, illuminated manuscript, literature was dead. It was too cheap.

When Daguerre proved that he could use sunlight to make pictures, art was on its last legs.

But Edison knew that photography would make great works of art familiar to everybody, also great buildings, and all the wonderful things on the planet, and thus increase intellectual interest and intellectual effort.

What the still photograph has done in a small way, moving pictures, planting ideas instantaneously, will do in a great way for millions of human beings.

"Give light and the people will find their own way."

Give knowledge, in any form, and the people will use it and find their way.

Income tax authorities tell you that only one man in the United States reports for taxation an income of $5,000,000. Any one of six big lawyers in the United States can name a different list of six men, every one of the thirty-six with $5,000,000 income at least. Some men have ten, fifteen and twenty million dollar incomes. What the biggest income is—that "secret" [illegible] certainly more than fifty millions, and you may be sure

This does not mean necessarily that the rich are dodging the income tax. Some take stock dividends instead of cash dividends; the government gets nothing—and the Supreme Court has allowed it.

Others have their money invested in securities that cannot be taxed. A doctor or little business man with ten thousand a year, must pay taxes. The man whose millions are invested in State or municipal bonds pays nothing on the income. In the United States are FORTY THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS OF SUCH SECURITIES, all free from government income tax.

It is nice for those that do not EARN their incomes, but get the money from invested capital.

In England they arrange matters so that the man who works to earn his income pays less than the man who gets his income without working. In this glorious republic we have it arranged so that the man who works to earn his income is taxed, whereas the man who gets his income from invested cash, doing no work, can escape income tax entirely.

Congress ought to change that, and the people ought to change it with a constitutional amendment, but they WON'T. We are not yet ready in this country to give up government by dollars entirely.

Seek to Show M'Kenna Murder Motive

CABOT FREED BY COURT

COURTMARTIAL FOR LORD DUNSANY

CELLMATE WITNESS AGAINST ADAMS

Says Accused Man Told Him He Needed Money to Set Up Chemical Laboratory

Providence, Jan. 27.—After a morning of surprises, the State rested its case against Rolf G. Adams, East Providence youth on trial in Superior Court here charged with the shooting to death of Miss Rose V. McKenna last September.

Among the features of the day was the appearance on the stand of William A. Costello, an inmate of the prison at Cranston, who was a cellmate of Adams in Providence County jail when the latter was arrested soon after the shooting.

It was apparent that, through the testimony of Costello, the State sought to show a motive for the shooting. This was the first time during the trial that the question of motive had been introduced.

Under direct examination Costello said that on the first night of their occupying the same cell, he and Adams were playing checkers; that Adams appeared nervous and the witness asked him what was the matter. Adams replied, he testified, that he had "done something awful," and

DEADLOCK TIGHTENS ON GERMAN PAYMENTS

Paris, Jan. 27.—At the League of Nations Supreme Council meeting today the deadlock over German reparations tightened as a result of new proposals by M. Doumer, French Minister of Finance. After a conference with Premier Briand of France and Count Sforza, the Italian Foreign Minister, Premier Lloyd George of England said he found it impossible to accept M. Doumer's view and suggested the financial and economic experts get together again tomorrow or Saturday.

SINN FEINER MURDERED IN BELFAST

London, Jan. 27.—The third murder in less than 24 hours was reported from Belfast this afternoon. The latest victim was Michael Garvey, a Sinn Feiner, who was killed in his home.

...MALDEN GROCERY STORE BURNED: $6,000 LOSS

Fire of unknown origin today destroyed the grocery [illegible] at No. 180 Salem street, Malden.

The blaze was discovered by Helen Easty, night operator of the Maldtn telephone exchange, who, noticing the signal and failing to get an answer, notified the police. Damage was estimated at $6,000.

TAX REIMBURSEMENTS ASKED ON $70,000,000

Cambridge wants the State to reimburse it for tax exemptions on Harvard, Radcliffe and M. I. T. property. City officials have appealed to the legislative committee on taxation, pointing out that such exemptions amount to $70,000,000, as a result of which the people have to pay $21 per $1,000 valuation. Representative Julius Meyers is leading the fight.

WEALTHY MALDEN MAN'S RESIDENCE IS ROBBED

Thieves today entered the home of Frederick W. Eaton, at the corner of Maplewood and Webster streets, Malden, by means of false keys. Because of the absence of Mr. Eaton and his family, the police were unable to learn what was stolen, but they believe that a large amount of loot was taken. The Eatons, one of Malden's wealthiest families, are living in Southern California for the Winter.

Locates Adam-Eve in New England

Is it a knock or a boost?

Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse University in the current issue of Zion's Herald says that "the Garden of Eden was in New England, and the particular entrance to it was in the State of Maine."

To a lot of people the Garden of Eden was a place where ladies went scantily clad, and where snakes abounded.

The Chancellor seems sure where, for he says: "I have read what they say about locating the Garden of Eden at the North Pole and on the Euphrates, but I know it was located in New England."

TWELVE SAVED FROM DEATH IN FIRE

Manchester Laddermen Carry Women and Children to Safety From Third Floor

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 27.—Twelve of fifteen women and children imprisoned on the top floor of the three-story brick tenement No. 26 Bridge street were carried to safety over ladders by firemen and citizens today, when the fire cut off their escape.

When firemen reached the burning structure they found the place so full of smoke that they could not gain entrance through the halls. Several ladders were hastily thrown to the third floor, in the windows of which the blanched faces of a dozen frantic children and frenzied women could be seen. Their pitiful cries for aid were mingled with the jangle of the fire bells.

Firemen climbed the ladders with extraordinary speed, and lifting the women and children one by one through the windows passed them from hand to hand down the ladders to safety in the cold streets below.

Men, some of them occupants of the blazing tenement and other passersby aided the firemen.

Several of those rescued were faint from the smoke and had to be given medical assistance after being rescued. All revived, however, without being taken to the hospital.

The fire loss was estimated at $1,000, the blaze being conquered by the firemen after a short, stiff battle.

ACCUSED BY ONE GIRL, WEDS ANOTHER

COUPLE ARE MARRIED DESPITE ARREST

Towne and Miss Kendall Slip Away to West Newbury and Have Knot Tied

Newburyport, Jan. 27.—Eluding trailing police bent on keeping them apart, Miss Ethel Kendell of Springvale avenue, Everett, and Sidney Towne of No. 127 Washington street, Lynn, slipped away to West Newbury and were married by Rev. E. T. Lyons.

When taken into court today to answer charges by pretty seventeen-year-old Hortense Gould, Salisbury telephone girl, who declared she was his sweetheart and should have been his wife, Towne said blandly: "Why, Ethel and I beat you out. We are already married."

News of the marriage came as a stunning surprise to Miss Gould and as a disappointment to the Newburyport police, who thought they had him effectively "shadowed."

The elopement and night wedding brought to a climax a triangular romance strangely as anything ever written in fiction.

Towne did not deny that he had at different times paid court to both girls. He pleaded guilty to the Gould girl's charges.

Neither did he explain what impelled him at the last moment to marry Miss Kendell, the sweetheart of four years ago, whom he left for two years for a sojourn in California.

Miss Gould, who tearfully told the police she loved Towne still, could only say brokenly today:

"My only fault, if it was a fault, was in loving him too well. I don't

MUNITIONS FOUND IN DESPITE IRISH CASTLE

Dunsany Reprieved and Spirited Away by British Authorities

By International News Service.

Dublin, Jan. 27.—Lord Dunsany, well-known poet and playwright, who was arrested yesterday on the charge of unlawfully having munitions in his possession and afterwards released, was rearrested today.

He was taken to an unknown destination. The munitions were discovered in Dunsany Castle.

Later announcement was made by the British authorities that Lord Dunsany would be court-martialed.

De Valera, in France, Says He'll Await Independence

Paris, Jan. 27.—Eamon De Valera, "President of the Irish Republic," is in France according to the newspaper L'Oeuvre today. This newspaper printed an interview with De Valera dated "Somewhere in France," in which the Irish leader was quoted as saying:

"Other countries of the British empire accepted the dominion form of government because their geographical location permitted them to separate from the empire if they chose to do so. Ireland is too close to England. England could use force against

William Bross Lloyd Has 'Comrade' Jailed

Chicago, Jan. 27.—William Bross Lloyd, millionaire communist, didn't recognize a "comrade" here. Mr. Lloyd found a burglar in his garage. With the aid of his chauffeur he nabbed the intruder.

"Hey, let me go," cried the burglar. "I'm a comrade."

"What do you mean 'comrade'?" demanded Lloyd.

"I am an I. W. W.," the burglar said.

"Well, you're going to jail," said Lloyd.

"Not if you're a regular I. W. W.," argued the burglar.

"Well, I'm not going to permit people to rob me," said Lloyd, as he loaded the burglar into his automobile and started for the jail.

As the jail door clanged behind the burglar he shouted through the bars: "You are a hell of an I. W. W."

The man gave his name as Hanson Christianson. He admitted he was an ex-convict.

William Bross Lloyd is a brother of Demarest Lloyd, Boston lawyer. He, with nineteen other Communists, was convicted of sedition in Chicago last August, sentenced from one to five years in the penitentiary, and fined $2,000. He is out on bail. This was the maximum penalty, as he was considered a leader of the radicals, being sergeant-at-arms of the Communist party.

DOZEN TOWNS MYSTERIOUSLY SHAKEN

New York, Jan. 27.—A shock, unexplained at an early hour today, was experienced in Southern New Jersey last evening.

At least a dozen towns, including Camden, were shaken but no casualties were reported.

According to one report, an earthquake shock had occurred, but verification could be obtained.

Was Called 'British Spy'

Lord and Lady Dunsany as they appeared on visit to Boston when Mary Boyle O'Reilly called his lordship a "British Spy."

Edward John Moreland Drax Plunkett, Lord Dunsany, who was rearrested in Dublin today, visited Boston in October, 1919, during a lecture tour which he made of this country, giving readings of his plays and imaginative tales.

Although it was in this city that his genius was first recognized a Boston publishing house being the first to print any of the Dunsany works on this side of the Atlantic, local interest in him appeared at the time to centre rather on the fact that he was a nephew of Sir Horace Plunkett, the Irish agriculturist.

Lord Dunsany arrived in New York October 9, a tall, blonde, imposing stranger, with a distinctly British accent, and an overcoat dressing that he had been a captain in the Royal Inniskillen Fusiliers. Lady Dunsany accompanied him and incidentally did most of the talking during the brief interview.

Lord Dunsany declined to discuss Irish politics, saying he had no interest in it, although he maintained a family castle at Meath.

Despite his attitude on the political question, his advent in Boston was heralded by a communication to the

TENNESSEE LIFTS BAN ON CIGARETTE SMOKING

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 27.—Smokers, not to mention cigarette dealers, are jubilant today over the repeal of the bill repealing the act which forbids the sale of cigarettes in this State, now before the Governor for his signature. Restriction of the sale of cigarettes to minors is being effected by a bill now in the State Senate.

JURY TOLD TO RENDER ACQUITTAL VERDICT

Weston and Holmes Still Have to Stand Trial on Receiving Stolen Goods Charge

Judge Fessenden today directed the jury trying Godfrey L. Cabot, Robert D. Weston and Hector M. Holmes to bring in a verdict of not guilty on the charge of conspiracy to steal papers from the law offices of Daniel H. Coakley.

This action of the court frees Cabot and eliminates him from the case.

Weston and Holmes, however, are still confronted by the charge of having received stolen goods.

Argument on this charge began immediately after the announcement of Judge Fessenden's decision.

The crowd in the court room, which had sat patiently listening to the prolonged argument over the motion filed by Attorney McClennen, counsel for the three accused men, asking for the directed verdict of acquittal, was not surprised by the judge's action.

Judge Fessenden explained that he had directed the verdict on the conspiracy charge and direct a verdict of acquittal because of a defect in the indictment between the allegations and the proof.

He said the State had failed to prove conspiracy.

MEXICAN ENVOY STRIVES TO SAVE SING SING MEN

Washington, Jan. 27.—Don Manuel C. Tellez, Mexican charge d'affaires here, made a final effort today to secure clemency for Augustin Sanchez and Enrique Garcia, two Mexican citizens who are to be executed at Sing Sing Prison tonight. Sanchez and Garcia were convicted of murder. Senor Tellez has visited the State Department several times for the purpose of making representations in behalf of the two men, and other Latin-American diplomats have co-operated with him.

EAST BOSTON TEACHER TO WED WAR VETERAN

Miss Claire A. Bulger, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Augustine J. Bulger of No. 61 Monmouth street, East Boston, will be married next Saturday to Harry F. Kiley of Charlestown, a World War veteran. To Consider K. of C. Memorial

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—At a meeting in Washington, February 7, 8 and 9, the executive committee of the American Legion will decide whether or not it will accept the offer of $5,000,000 from the Knights of Columbus for a legion war memorial in the capital.

Sentence Ex-Pastor As Wife Slayer

Agana, Is., Jan. 27.—L. T. Beaujamin, church organist and a former clergyman, will be sentenced here saturday for the murder of his wife by beating out her brains with a hammer. He pleaded guilty to the slaying when brought into court late yesterday.

Beaujamin told the court he killed his wife when she refused to get a divorce so he could marry a girl for whom infidelity he admitted responsibility.

Later, he said, he intended to take the other girl to some other city and his fear so she wouldn't bother me any more."

GHOULS SCARED FROM SENATOR KEAN'S GRAVE

New York, Jan. 27.—An attempt to rob the grave of the late United States Senator John Kean in Evergreen Cemetery, in Elizabeth, N. J., was frustrated by the arrival of police, who were told of it by men at work in the cemetery near midnight. The ghouls had dug into the ground covering the grave until they had reached the top of the concrete casement in which the casket rests.

LABOR FACING "GREATEST CRISIS," . SAYS BRITISH LEADER

Affects Entire World, Declares John Hodge at Conference on Unemployment

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 27.—[illegible] Britain's history has the appearance to-day when a [illegible] opposed to [illegible] against the government and pressure is [illegible] immediate alleviation of unemployment.

"We are facing the greatest industrial crisis in history," declared John Hodge, Laborite member of Parliament, in opening the conference.

"It is a crisis [illegible] Hodge said, that extends all over Europe and even to the United States."

The crisis, growing steadily worse, has had a new element of bitterness injected by Labor's charge that a large part of the nation's distress is artificial. Labor leaders declare capital is increasing the number of unemployed in a deliberate attempt to force down wages.

The main outlines of the situation are these:

Unemployment has passed the 1,-500,000 mark by a wide margin. Labor circles claim that those directly affected together with families and dependents run to a total of about 5,000,000.

Hopes that reopening trade with Russia would bring an industrial revival have come to nothing for there now seems little likelihood of a Anglo-Russian trade pact being signed.

LABOR LEADERS URGE TRADE WITH RUSSIA

N. Y. Delegation Says Resumption Means Work for Jobless Millions in U. S.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Resumption of trade with Russia to revive American industry and provide employment for the country's jobless millions was urged by a delegation of labor leaders before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"The orders which Russia is ready to place in this country will set the wheels of industry in motion and bring relief to the millions who are out of work and suffering," Timothy Healy of New York told the committee. Mr. Healy is president of the brotherhood of Fireman and Oilers, and chairman of the American Labor Alliance for Trade with Russia.

SAYS RUSSIA ALONE CAN PAY.

Russia alone in Europe can pay for American goods, Joseph Schlossberg secretary-treasurer of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, declared. She can pay in gold in goods and in virgin resources, he testified.

Senator France of Maryland whose resolution for the resumption of friendly relations with Russia was the subject of the hearing, also appealed for the re-establishment of trade.

Arguments opposing the proposal were presented to the committee by Senator Brandegee of Connecticut, in a letter from John Spargo, prominent American Socialist and an authority on Russian affairs.

"Resolutions and letters have been received from organizations representing over 2,000,000 workers protesting further interference in Russian politics and demanding the resumption of trade with Russia," Mr. Healy asserted.

WOULD RESTORE PROSPERITY.

"I have been informed that the only hindrance to filling Russian orders in this country is the refusal of the treasury department to accept Russian gold. But if we will not fill these orders, England will."

Mr. Schlossberg, the next witness said:

"Trade with Russia will be the signal for revival to those industries that could supply her needs, and with the increase in employment in these industries, other business activities would be revived, and prosperity would return."

Vanished in Pursuit of Art

Miss Blanche Spellman, eighteen-year-old daughter of a New York lawyer, whose mysterious disappearance was explained by the finding of a letter which had fallen behind a table. The girl is in Montreal.

New York, Jan. 27—The pursuit of art was the explanation given today for the sudden disappearance from New York and Columbia University of Miss Blanche Spellman, eighteen-year-old daughter of Benjamin F. Spellman, a lawyer.

The young woman dropped from sight mysteriously last Monday but he left a note explaining that the duties of her course at Columbia University had climaxed her purpose of taking up an art course at McGill University, Montreal.

This note had fallen behind a living room table, and it was when a second note arrived from Montreal that the parents of the girl learned of her whereabouts and the first note was recovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Spellman left today for Montreal to provide the girl with money and other necessities. She had left home with only $5 in cash.

BOLSHEVIKI TO ELECTRIFY RUSSIA

Lenine Plans to Connect Volga River With Black Sea by Railway

London, Jan. 27.—The electrification of the whole of Russia in ten years, giving the communists control of all the power upon which the country's industrial and agricultural enterprises will be built, is to be attempted by the Bolsheviki.

The result, say the leaders, will be not only an enormous development of Russia's resources, but the assured continuance of the Soviet form of government.

Lenine outlined his idea at the eighth congress of Soviets held recently in Moscow. Introducing the author of the scheme, the engineer, Kahishanovsky, head of the electrification committee, he said:

"Communism is Soviet rule, plus electrification of the whole country. Henceforward the platforms of congresses of Soviets will be occupied not only by politicians and administrators, but also by engineers and agriculturists. It is the beginning of the happy epoch when there will be less politics."

Kahishanovsky's plan, as outlined to the Soviets, is to harness the potential energy of Russian rivers and other sources of power. The rivers alone, he says, will yield 20,-000,000 horsepower, half of it coming from Siberia.

He declares that under this electrified utopia 100,000 miners will be able to do the work of 300,000 and the slow Russian railway and water transport will be revolutionized.

It is planned to connect the Volga and the Black Sea by an electric railroad. New canals are to be cut and rivers widened. The rapids of the Dneieper will be submerged by raising the water level, and never again will Russia experience a fuel, vitalizing or transport crisis.

that, if it were not for his "dear mother and sister at Kingston College," he would kill himself. He said he would do it with a razor blade if he had one, witness stated.

Costello said he offered Adams a razor he had borrowed from a murderer and that Adams showed him how he would use it were he not restrained by consideration for his family.

Costell said Adams had told him how he went out on the night of September 4 "to get money" how he walked down Eslington Parkway, adjusted the mask, went into a field and saw an automobile parked without lights; how he told the man in the car to throw up his hands, how the man made a movement and he (Adams) fired his revolver.

Adams said he did not know how many shots he fired, according to the witness, but added that he dropped his mask and reloaded his gun with a full clip of cartridges, so that if it were found suspicion would not fall on him, and then hid the gun under a rock across the railroad track.

He needed money, he told Costello, according to the latter, to set up a chemical laboratory in his home.

tion newspapers from Miss Mary Boyle O'Reilly, in which the patriot's daughter accused Dunsany of being "an English spy."

Dunsany lectured at the Copley-Plaza October 20, 1919, before a small but enthusiastic audience. Arrangements for the lecture had been made in a haphazard manner by a lecture bureau which later went bankrupt following the fiasco of a foreign poet whom the bureau also handled.

Lord Dunsany read from his own works, going right through one play "The Queen's Enemies" with apparent satisfaction to himself. He often laughed heartily at his own humor as exemplified in one of his short stories.

While here he expressed astonishment that American moving picture magnates were not outbidding each other for a chance to produce his plays, most of which he saw performed for the first time in this country. However, he declined to go out of his way to meet any motion picture men, saying it was up to them to visit him.

Before he returned to England he carried with him numerous scrapbooks of newspaper clippings which he had brought to this side with him. Since his departure from Boston, accounts had been more quietly than his arrival, a local magazine has printed several sallies of his authorship.

GOVERNMENT LOSES MILLIONS IN HUGE SUGAR SCANDAL

CANDY MEN FAVORED IN DEAL

Vast Army Sugar Stores Sold at 8¾ Cents When Public Paid 35 Cents

Washington, Jan. 27.—Washington, case-hardened to departmental exposures, was amazed today at the revelation of how the War Department trafficked in sugar manufacturers and by a scandalous deal lost approximately $2,500,000.

When the public was paying from 24 to 35 cents a pound for sugar—and little to be had even at that price—46,254,000 pounds were sold by the sugar equalization board to canners and candy makers at 8¾ cents a pound.

The 46,254,000 pounds was army "surplus" which had been acquired by the board from the War Department at cost—the same price at which it was sold later to the canners and candy manufacturers.

As a result of the sale a shortage developed in army stocks and the War Department was forced to buy 22,500,000 pounds of raw sugar and 14,000,000 pounds of refined in the open market at an average of 14 cents per pound, thereby losing approximately $2,500,000 on the deal.

This remarkable transaction was revealed, reluctantly, by Major-General H. L. Rogers, Quartermaster-General, testifying before the Graham committee investigating expenditures in the War Department. He said the sale was made by the War Department over his protest and by order of Assistant Secretary of War Benedict Crowell.

"Isn't there a law that sales of all army surplus stocks shall be advertised?" asked Chairman Graham.

"Yes," replied General Rogers, "but under cases from the office of the Secretary of War, and we had no choice in the matter. Perhaps it came under the war powers of the President."

General Rogers also testified that 27,678,978 pounds of army flour was sold during 1919, a large quantity being shipped abroad by the United States Grain Corporation.

EIGHT POLICEMEN ARE TRANSFERRED

Eight patrolmen were slated in general orders issued by Superintendent Crowley for transfers, to take effect tomorrow morning.

Patrolman Richard E. Leary goes from Superintendent Crowley's office to the City Hall avenue station, and Patrick H. Purcell is transferred from the Jamaica Plain station to headquarters. The officers will leave the West Roxbury station. Patrolman Martin C. Welch is transferred to the Hall avenue station, and Officer Patrick M. McGrath goes from West Roxbury to the Jamaica Plain house.

Other transfers are: Patrolman Leo J. Phelan, from the Brighton station to the City Hall avenue station; Patrolman Roy Clifford, from the Joy street station to Brighton; William J. Henderson, from the East Boston station to the Joy street station and Patrolman Thomas F. McManaman, from the East Dedham street station to the Morton street station.

MARSHAL NEAL URGES DRASTIC FIRE LAWS

Millions of dollars' worth of damage has been caused by fires in Massachusetts during the past few years, and particularly since the period of after-war depression set in, by fires which, a large part of which, might have been prevented but for the laxity of the State Legislature in failing to enact drastic and radical preventive fire legislation.

This is the declaration of George C. Neal, fire marshal, whose activities are investigating the recent damaging fires in Worcester and in other section of the Commonwealth, as well as the alarming spread of alleged incendiarism throughout the State in the past few months.

ARRESTS IN WESTFIELD SHOW BIG FALLING OFF

Westfield, Jan. 27.—Addition of two patrolmen and extension of the police signal system in the residential section is recommended by the chief of police. There were 533 arrests made during the year, compared with 736 the previous year, and the chief's reasons were: For drunkenness, 110; motor law violations, 78; vagrancy, 37; larceny, 28, and disturbance, 28. There were 287 persons arrested giving their occupations as laborers, and students stood next highest with 47.

ENGLAND SPEAKS TO FOLK LORE SOCIETY

Recounting experiences among cod fishermen of the Newfoundland coast and the Miquelon Islands, Miss Gillian England, the speaker, told folk lore tales at the first annual meeting of the American Folk Lore Society, at Hotel Vendome, last night. So deeply ingrained are the superstitions of the sailors they refuse to sail unless omens are favorable for a safe voyage, he said.

Marries Despite Arrest

Mrs. Sidney Towne, formerly Miss Ethel Kendell of Everett, who was married to Towne, after charges preferred by another girl had temporarily halted the wedding.

know what I am going to do now. I suppose the courts will take charge of the case."

Miss Gould first informed the Newburyport police of the approaching marriage last night.

She said she had seen a notice of the arrest in the Boston papers, and it came as an indescribable shock to her, as she confidently counted on becoming his wife.

When the bridegroom-to-be and Miss Kendell were driven to automobile here they were shadowed. When they went to the home of Rev. Arthur H. Wright for the ceremony they were followed. As Towne stepped from the automobile he was arrested.

He was held for an hour at the police station while the serious charges of Miss Gould were reduced to writing.

He made no attempt to deny that he had paid her court for some months, although inattentive to her on some weeks past.

When Towne got $400 bail pending his appearance in court today he left the station, followed by police. A police guard was set outside Rev. Mr. Wright's house to prevent the marriage, although this was scarcely necessary, as the clergyman declared he would not officiate, in view of the circumstances.

The flight to West Newbury was effected without the police officers suspecting the move. The bridegroom seemed highly elated today by his ability to outwit the authorities, and smiled broadly when arraigned before Judge Thomas C. Simpson.

He was held in $400 for trial on the charges next May, and provided the bail.

Little is known of Miss Kendell in Everett. Towne is a railroad man, living with his mother in Lynn. He has not many acquaintances there, owing to his stay in California.

SEVEN DISBARMENT CASES ARE DISMISSED

Pittsfield, Jan. 27.—Judges Callahan in Superior Court here dismissed seven disbarment cases brought by Robert W. Renfrew, now of Boston, but formerly of Pittsfield, for lack of evidence. Renfrew charged illegal practice. The defendants were Charles S. Hibbard, Judge Charles L. Hibbard, John P. Noxon, Frank H. Cande, George A. Pregiber, Joseph Ward Lewis and Michael Leisner.

PLEADS HUNGER WITH PIG IN HIS CELLAR

Brockton, Jan. 27.—Although he declared his children were starving, officers found plenty of food in the home of Peter Sirocco, as well as a husky porker fattening in the cellar. Sirocco was arrested, charged with stealing coal from a local concern, and gave the hunger of his children as an excuse. He was placed on probation.

2 GIRLS BREAK THROUGH ICE AND DROWN

Mother's Screams Too Late to Save Companions in Auburn Tragedy

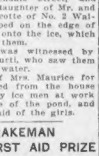
Auburn, Jan. 27.—A mother's screams brought help too late to her six-year-old daughter and a seven-year-old girl companion after they had fallen through thin ice into Stoneville pond, and both were drowned.

The children, Helen L. Maurice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Maurice of Rochdale street, and Emma Turcotte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Turcotte of No. 2 Wallace avenue, slipped on the edge of the pond, falling onto the ice, which gave way under them.

The accident was witnessed by Mrs. Michael Mauril, who saw them disappear in the water.

The screams of Mrs. Maurice for aid as she rushed from the house were answered by ice men at work on the other side of the pond, and they ran to the aid of the girls.

ALLSTON BRAKEMAN GETS FIRST AID PRIZE



Edward J. Gagnon of No. 47 Pratt street, Allston, a brakeman on the Boston & Albany railroad, was presented with a $100 prize from the American Red Cross William Howard Taft fund today for rendering the most timely and efficient first aid reported of any railroad man during 1920.

Edward J. Gagnon

Gagnon on February 7, 1920, saved the life of a fellow brakeman who had fallen under a freight car by using the leather thong attached to his switch key as a tourniquet, and [illegible] of blood.

The presentation was made in the [illegible] general superintendent of the road by Dr. Richard G. Wadsworth, director of the Bureau of First Aid for the New England Division of the Red Cross.

Gagnon was born in Laconia, N. H., in 1898, and entered the employ of the Boston & Albany in February, 1920.

Lower Price for Tractors

Lower cost of materials and maximum plant operations have enabled the reduction of the price of the Fordson tractor from $750 to $625. The new price is effective immediately.

Worth $100,000, Yet Lives in a Barn

New York, Jan. 27.—He lived in a barn and owned $100,000 worth of real estate. He was haled to court in Jamaica for failing to pay for a garage permit and was asked why he insisted upon living so poorly.

"I am living according to my own way." William Mohrman, thirty-eight years old, responded. "I do not care how much other people laugh. I have no family to support. I would rather live in a barn honestly than in a palace in debt. I enjoy it, and that is what most men fail to find nowadays. They are trying to do too much; they live beyond their means. I am going to live long, within my means and with contentment."

Mohrman spent the night on a jail cot.

"That is the best bed I have slept in for many years," he said. "I don't care how long they keep me here."

Mohrman owns three houses and a garage. He came into court with a suit of clothes which he said cost him only $5 four years ago. He wore a collar which had lasted him for six years.

The magistrate reserved decision.

MEN'S EYES PUT OUT BY 'BLACK AND TANS'

Roscommon Woman Writes of Horrible Cruelties Inflicted on Irish Republicans

Stories of "Black and Tan" brutality in Ireland are contained in a letter received by Mrs. Delia O'Neil of No. 26 Wentworth street, Dorchester, from her sister in Athlone, County Roscommon.

Tortures harking back to the rack of the middle ages have been inflicted on captured Republicans, according to the Roscommon woman.

She tells of men with broken arms and eyes put out being taken away to prison singing the "Soldier's Song" and crying "Up the Republic."

Mrs. O'Neil does not wish her sister's name made public, for fear of consequences to the family in Roscommon, but here is the letter:

"Athlone, County Roscommon,

"Ireland, Jan. 11, 1921.

"Dear Sister Delia—We have gotten all your letters as yet. I don't think that anything goes astray that is mailed here, but still it is risky to send anything important.

"I am writing to tell you that after all their burnings and everything that was done I never was an eye witness to anything that grieved me more than to see thirty or forty young men from the girls of Cam last Saturday morning going out in three lorries from the police barracks to the prisons. Their faces were burned with irons, their arms broken and the eyes put out of some of them. They had to be carried on stretchers.

"The few who were able to stand shouted to us, 'Up the Republic,' and declared they would gladly die for their country.

"They never showed right crusty until now. The Black and Tans in the Barracks went to Creggane and Taylor Town last Saturday night and kicked and murdered an old man of eighty years of age. We don't know what minute or hour we will get the same.

"Wherever the government got those people, they are not Christians I trust in God they will not be here long."

REFUSES TO REHIRE DISCHARGED VETERANS

Lawrence, Jan. 27.—Alderman Michael P. Session, director of public property and parks, steadfastly refuses to take back into his department eleven war veterans whom he discharged on account of politics.

It was suggested to him by Mayor William P. White that he re-employ all the men but one, and make a test case of the latter. Because of the fact that the places of the eleven discharged veterans have been filled by other veterans, the situation has developed complications.

The three veterans employed in the municipal stores lost their jobs when the stores were abolished by the council on grounds of economy.

Making Model of Big Rocket to Hit Moon

Worcester, Jan. 27.—A "workable" model of the multiple-charge rocket that is expected to hit the moon is being made by Professor Robert H. Goddard of the physics department at Clark College, here. He said today that the test will be made next Summer.

With funds supplied him by the Smithonian Institution of Washington—some $5,000—Professor Goddard said today that he was more convinced than ever of the practicability of building a rocket capable of striking the moon and making a flash visible to the naked eye, or large enough to be visible through telescopes on Mother Earth.

He has already made a preliminary report to the institution, describing "A Method of Reaching Extreme Altitudes," and the Washington institution has asked him to continue his research. Funds are not available to construct a rocket for the journey to the moon, but a model to go up about a mile on the same principle of construction is being made.

Professor Goddard is in hopes that the miniature rocket will prove to the skeptical that the theory is sound and that some "angel" will advance the requisite wherewithal to complete the experiment.

"When are you going to hit the moon?" Professor Goddard was asked. He paced the floor of his laboratory at the college, rubbed his eyes and replied:

"Well, that is hard to tell. I hope to accomplish that feat some day, but the apparatus is not yet ready my operations to zones nearer the earth. There seems to be a great deal more interest on the part of the general public in my effort to perfect a device to strike the moon than in the more practical objects of my experiments.

"The greatest altitude at which soundings of the atmosphere have been made by balloons is about twenty miles. Kites have gone up about five miles and, I believe, the record for airplanes is around six miles.

"Now the atmosphere is supposed to extend some 200 miles. Some of the most interesting and, in many ways the most important part of the atmosphere lies in the unexplored region. I have perfected in my mind a device that will go through the atmosphere into other beyond and, in fact, into infinity. From my experiments I believe it is possible.

"What do we want to hunt around in the sky for? A few of the more important matters to be investigated are the density of air, chemical constitution and temperature of the atmosphere, humidity, electrical conditions and solar physics. Scientists are also interested in the aurora and the nature of rays from the sun.

"In addition, he considers his machine—now in embryo—a necessity in prognosticating the weather. Some weather observations are made by balloons today and they are costly, bulky to handle and not adequate, he said his device would go up, take pictures and record atmospheric conditions and come down in perfect condition.

The propelling force of the rocket would be smokeless explosive powder. The gases would be ejected from the rocket at high velocity, and with each successive explosion the rocket would be boosted higher. The discharges would be similar to those from a machine gun.

He explained that to reach an altitude of twenty-five miles a rocket weighing some twenty-five pounds would be necessary of the total weight, about seventeen pounds would be powder.

There would be about 300 discharges, and the speed would average about 150 feet per second. When the rocket has reached the desired altitude, a parachute would automatically open up and let the rocket down without breaking.

He said that the Weather Bureau has offered two designs of recording instruments to be attached to rockets for observation purposes.

Professor Goddard has made many experiments since 1915, when he first began developing the idea. As an experiment was performed to find the minimum mass of flash powder that should be visible at any particular distance.

He found that a mass of 0.629 grams of flash powder was visible 2.24 miles.

If this flash powder were exploded on the surface of the moon and a telescope of one foot aperture were used, there would be needed a mass of flash powder of 2.67 pounds to be just visible and 13.32 pounds to be "strikingly visible."

He calculates that with an initial mass charge weighing 0.636 pounds he could cause an explosion on the surface of the moon large enough to be seen from the earth through a telescope. This rocket would travel at the rate of 8,000 or 7,000 feet per second.

Professor Goddard did research work on long-distance shells during the war. Four patents have been taken out on the multiple-charge rocket.

IRISH STUDENTS PROTEST TECH EDITORIAL

Appeal to Faculty on Regarding Anglo-American Utterances in College Paper

Students of Irish birth and extraction at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology are framing a protest to the faculty as a result of the publication of an editorial in the college paper, The Tech, touching on the aspirations of their race.

Different Irish societies throughout the State have taken up the matter. The editorial reads:

WORDS OF EDITORIAL.

"At a meeting held under the auspices of the British Empire Club, two speakers emphasized the danger to Anglo-American friendship arising from the unbridled Sinn Fein agitation in this country. They put forward the British point of view, speaking of the irritation which is felt at our meddling in what to them is an internal problem. We do not intend to discuss the Irish situation in these columns, but we do think that the subject of our relations with England is of vital concern to everyone.

"The more radical Irish sympathizers, supported by the sensation seeking and demagogic section of the press, are carrying on a systematic and dangerous anti-British propaganda. To these men and their ordinance the difference of opinion is one conflict of policy, however vicious, is ten times the furnish grounds for countries against perfidious Albion. Their actions, misinterpreted by the Irish, as the expression of a national sentiment, cause irritation.

"If unfriendly relations between the two countries could do the cause of which they are spokesmen any good they might claim that the end justifies the means. On the contrary, it merely harms this country.

COMMERCIAL RIVAL.

"With Germany temporarily out of the running, England is our principal commercial rival; commercial jealousy is often the source of misunderstanding is easy. Let us not forget, however, that temporary commercial advantage is of far less importance as compared with racial progress.

"The Anglo-Saxon race, having acquired sufficient land and commercial advantages for its present and future needs, and established a world hegemony, is in danger of sitting back complacently, saying that it is the best possible world and that everyone ought to be happy.

"We are prone to forget that other races have fortunately refrained may be casting envious eyes on our possessions, and that they are perfecting they will step in and attempt to overthrow our leadership.

"The United States have outgrown the possibility of splendid isolation and must recognize their relation to the rest of the world. Our European policy—or lack of policy—has left us few enough friends. It has hardened them, deliberately to alienate our natural ally when the best possible guarantee of world peace is unity among the English-speaking peoples."

Divorced Mrs. Vanderbilt Weds S. J. Colford, Jr.

Mrs. Cathleen Colford, divorced wife of Reginald C. Vanderbilt. She won divorce last April.

Mrs. Sydney J. Colford (the first), who last December divorced the man who has just married the former Mrs. Vanderbilt.

New York, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Cathleen Neilson Vanderbilt, former wife of Reginald C. Vanderbilt, was married quietly to Sydney J. Colford, jr., at her Park avenue home here.

New York society was not invited to the ceremony which took place in the presence of a few friends. The engagement of the couple had not been announced and the hurried wedding came as a surprise.

The Colfords have left on a wedding trip.

Mrs. Vanderbilt obtained a divorce from Reginald Vanderbilt in April, 1920, at Newport, on grounds of desertion. She was awarded the custody of her daughter, Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt.

Mr. Colford was divorced by his wife on December 3 at Newport. She charged neglect to provide and obtained the custody of their two minor children, Dorothy Knit and Clark Dwight Colford.

CALDER WARNS OF 'PATERNAL HOUSING'

Denounces Subsidy Plans and Demands Return to Local Taxation

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 27.—America's housing shortage will lead to "Paternal housing" legislation unless immediate steps are taken to bring about the resumption of construction work, Senator Calder of New York, chairman of the Senate Reconstruction Committee, declared today before the national housing conference of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

"We may be approaching a condition of affairs such as exists in many European countries today," Senator Calder declared. "This will mean the adoption of European precedents born of the paternalism of monarchies, rather than a continuation of the American precedents which have made it possible for each man through exceptional thrift and industry to become a property owner.

Senator Calder urged that the Chamber of Commerce give its support to the program recommended to the Senate to reduce construction costs and encourage the building of houses.

Discussing general business conditions, Senator Calder declared that "the entire business of the country today is unnecessarily tied up by the centralized system of federal tax administration."

He announced that he would propose to Congress "the decentralization of our federal taxation system so that a citizen may go to the authorities in his own locality and settle his tax matters finally and promptly each year."

MACY ELECTED HEAD OF HARVARD DRAMATIC CLUB

Josiah N. Macy, '22, of Scarboro, N. Y., has been elected president of the Harvard Dramatic Club. Other officers chosen are: Warwick P. Scott, '23, of Landsdowne, Pa., vice-president; William M. Tucker, '23, of Manchester, secretary, and Halpic B. Emery, '22, of Newton Centre, treasurer.

MYSTIC, CT., WORKERS ACCEPT CUT IN PAY

Mystic, Ct., Jan. 27.—Two hundred employes of the Rossie Velvet Company have voted to accept a cut of from 15 to 20 per cent in wages as was announced today. The mill will resume operations at once on the new schedule.

'Mrs. Harding Blue' to Be the Fashion

New York, Jan. 27.—Mrs. Harding Blue" is to be the fashionable color in garments for women this Spring, according to an announcement by a Fifth avenue firm today. The announcement said the wife of the President-elect had picked out the color from an assortment sent her.

GUEST AND HIS AMERICAN WIFE PART

Former British Liberal "Whip" and Heiress Separate by Mutual Consent

New York, Jan. 27.—After fifteen years of married life, Frederick Guest, one of England's most prominent statesmen, and his wife, Amy Daughter of Henry Phipps, famous Pennsylvania multi-millionaire, have agreed to separate. This followed a decision reached after a conference from London.

It is stated that the couple have long suffered because of temperamental differences. Matters came to a climax a few weeks ago when Guest went on a trip to the Mediterranean, leaving his wife in London.

It is stated that the people have long suffered on account of temperamental differences. Matters were brought to a climax a few weeks ago when Guest went on a trip to the Mediterranean leaving his wife in London.

Mrs. Fred'k Guest

PLANS TO VISIT NEW YORK.

She is now planning to leave London for New York in a few weeks.

A legal separation in English courts is said to be unlikely. It is said, however, that the couple have decided that life together is no longer possible and that they will henceforth live apart by mutual consent.

People who know the couple in New York say that Mrs. Guest resented her eclipse as a political hostess when the British coalition was formed in succession to the liberal government for which her husband acted as a whip. It is certain that he would have attained ministerial rank if his chief, Asquith, had continued in office.

FORGOTTEN BY SOCIETY.

In the war days Mrs. Guest gave luxurious parties at Aldford House, the famous Park Lane structure built by Alfred Beit, South African diamond millionaire. When her husband's importance as a political factor diminished with Asquith's downfall, invitations to their political receptions were not sought.

Of late Mrs. Guest has been living in a modest suburban residence, Tempest House, Prebendown, but when her husband left for the continent, she went to live with friends.

Guest is a younger brother of Baron Wimborne.

15 FACE ARREST AS 'RUM RING' LEADERS

2 Held and $1,600 Worth of Liquor Seized in Worcester After Exciting Chase

The Federal net is closing swiftly about members of the New England "rum ring."

Ten New Englanders face arrest and the identity of the leader is said to be known to the revenue and prohibition agents operating under the direction of William J. McCarthy.

The ramifications of the ring, which are believed to extend all over this and the adjoining States, are being traced by the prohibition agents.

At Worcester Federal Officers McCarthy and Gillon early today captured, after an exciting chase, a shipment of eighty gallons of alcohol, valued at $1,600, and arrested two Brooklyn, N. Y., men, who gave their names as Edward M. Carbon and Ludwig Holm.

The officers sighted the machine containing the liquor about a mile from Webster square, Worcester, and immediately gave chase. The contraband car dashed away at the rate of a mile a minute, but the Federal car proved the faster and overhauled the fugitives. One of the men in the flying car leaped and disappeared in the darkness, but the others surrendered.

Prohibition officials declare the car was on its way from New York to Boston, with a shipment of contraband for the "rum ring" of New England.

This was the second raid of the day in Worcester, several gallons of alcohol having been seized with eight quarts of gin and fifteen quarts of whisky at the home of George A. Emerson.

At Springfield prohibition agents today are jubilant over the surrender of Michael Dreek, on Vine street, believed to have been the driver of the whiskey laden car, whose dash from Stamford, Ct., to Springfield, en route to Boston, Tuesday, threw the whole of the Connecticut Valley into turmoil.

Dreek walked into the police station and gave himself up. He denied he had driven the car, but refused to talk about the case until he had "seen a lawyer." He is being held as a fugitive from justice.

The car when found in a Springfield garage was riddled with bullets, but all traces of the load it is believed to have carried had vanished. Bloodstains on a seat and the floor of the car led the police to believe that one at least of the passengers carried on its wild flight was wounded, but Dreek denies anyone was injured in his car.

Prohibition Agent William J. McCarthy is the authority for the statement that the ten New England men today confronting arrest are also implicated in the conspiracy revealed by the discovery of thirty-five barrels of liquor at a farm house at Oxford last Sunday.

The barrels like the 4,500 gallons are said to have been withdrawn on application for delivery in New York from local bonded warehouses, but to have been intended really for distribution among the bootleggers of New England.

More than 7,200 gallons of liquor have been withdrawn from local warehouses since January 1, according to government officials, an increase of 5,000 gallons over the average for the four preceding months.

EXPRESS SERVICE HAS "RIGHT WAY PLAN"

Announcement was made today by Superintendent W. A. Morris, in charge of the American Railway Express forces in the Boston Division, of the inauguration of a nation-wide movement in the express business to be known as the "Right Way Plan." The purpose of this effort will be to increase the efficiency of the express service. Superintendent Morris stated that he selected a number of his most experienced workers to act as a special "Right Way Committee," to carry on an ambitious educational program to instruct local employes regarding the proper methods for handling every phase of the express business. Regular meetings of the forces will be held daily, at which the Right Way principles of handling express matter will be set forth by the express officials. The meetings will be held simultaneously with others throughout the country. It is expected that all classes of express workers will be reached by this plan. The co-operation of express shippers in this city will be enlisted in the movement.

AGED TINSMITH ROBBED OF $3,000

Springfield, Jan. 27.—John I. Shine, an aged tinsmith, reported to the police that thieves entered his bedroom and stole $3,000 hidden in a coal bag. He had intended to take the money to a bank today.

Extra! Extra! All About Yap! Where Stones Are Money and Women Wear No Clothes

And the Fishermen Can't Even Speak to a Girl

Yap is not a brand of conversation as commonly supposed.

It's the name of an island out in the Pacific that bids fair to become as much of a bone of contention between the United States and the country of the Mikado as the California land question or the "open door."

Incidentally it is likely to prove to have been another one of those things that showed President Wilson more of an idealist than a practical statesman, virtually interested in the welfare of his own country.

Down in Washington today they are saying in Senatorial circles that Mr. Wilson was the victim of a real international "shell game" worked by Great Britain and Japan, with Yap as the reward of victory for the Nipponese diplomats.

Certain it is, say those who have studied the tangled problem involving the ownership of the little Pacific bit of "stone money" and pretty women that the President was outwitted and outgamed at every point by his wily opponents at the peace table.

INTERNATIONAL DISPUTE.

Also there is considerable doubt whether the Island, which is a highly valuable strategic base of communication between Hawaii and the Philippine group, and as such is badly needed by Uncle Samuel, is going to come to him as his sole reparation for his losses in the war with Germany.

As a matter of fact it looks now as though not only Japan but all the other allied powers are going to be involved in the dispute over the specks of sand thousands of miles away from the mainland of the United States, and hundreds of miles from any other land save the islands of the Caroline group.

The Council of Five at Paris formally assigned the island to Japan in pursuance of an agreement entered into between Japan and Britain and the other allies back in 1918.

That agreement provided that Japan was to have all the German-owned land in the Pacific north of the equator while all south of that line should go to Great Britain. The President wasn't there at all when that little transaction took place.

He was also absent when the Council of Five voted, May 7, 1919, to turn the island over to the Mikado.

WILSON BOODWINKED.

Meantime the importance of the island to the United States became more and more apparent, and the members of the Senate foreign committee and other committees of that body began investigating the tangled mess.

And the more they probed the clearer it became that Mr. Wilson had been hoodwinked as easily as a precocious boy trying to play cards with experts.

Back of all the diplomacy and strategy involved in Yap there's a fascinating story.

It concerns the history of the island itself and of the people who live on it.

Yap is right where the line of cable from Hawaii to Manila via Guam crosses the line of cable between Yokahama and the former German colony on the Island of Borneo.

In other words it occupies one of the most important spots in that constantly increasing in importance locality, the Western Pacific. It is a wonderful naval base for Japan should she ever desire to attack the Philippines or Guam.

Furthermore its possession gives her complete control of the cable lines between this country and the naval and commercial posts in the Orient.

INTERESTING HISTORY.

That's what Yap is as an outpost of trade and naval safety of the United States. In itself it is a lot more interesting.

To begin with you can spell the name any way you please. Some people call it Uap, and others Guap, and still others just Ap, with an apostrophe in front, though that last is generally considered icky.

It lies in latitude 10 north and longitude 140 east.

The island was discovered first by the old Spanish freebooters who roamed those seas as far back as 1525, and Germany purchased the place from Spain in 1899 for about $3,000,000.

There are about 7,500 Yaps on the islands, and the Germans are authority for the statement that they are most highly intelligent for savages, though for many years they have labored under a dreadful reputation. This is due largely to their attitude toward foreigners, particularly missionaries, whom they dislike most intensely.

The natives are tall, good looking, with coffee colored skin, brown eyes, curly brown or black hair, high cheek bones and small hooked noses.

CURIOUS CUSTOMS.

The Germans enforced prohibition as soon as they took control of the island, and they also put an abrupt ending to the constant interethnal wars which had been raging on and off ever since the second man landed on Yap.

CURIOUS CUSTOMS.

The Germans enforced prohibition as soon as they took control of the island, and they also put an abrupt ending to the constant interethnal wars which had been raging on and off ever since the second man landed on Yap.

The tiny island was sub-divided into a few tinier districts, each with its own capital.

The people are divided into two major classes, the Ulun-Pagel, or aristocrats, and the Pimlingani, or workers. The former have a right to wear a comb made of bamboo, about eight inches long. The teeth of the comb are used to hold cocoon leaves of many colors, cotton tufts and strips of pandanus. It would be worth a worker's life to be caught with one of these combs.

The women wear girdles of pandus leaves only, and their ears are pierced for rings early in life. While healing, the ears are protected by the stained halves of cocoanut shells fastened over the head. As the shells are much the same color as the wearer's face at a distance the girls of Yap all look like they had had attacks of mumps.

When the ears have healed they are decorated with bits of tin, old glass bottles an old shoe, anything, in fact, that takes the Yappish fancy of the owner.

STONE MONEY.

There is little village life among these people. The men live in club houses called pabal when it is inland, or falu when located on the shore. The unmarried men live there with a mispil, or woman servant, who is the common property of all the men, and highly honored by them, and

Map showing location of the island of Yap in the Pacific, the possession of which bids fair to become a controversy of extreme importance between Japan and the United States.

7,500 Regular Yaps on the Island; Fine, Tall Savages

all her friends. She is the only woman allowed in these clubs.

The chief industry of the islanders is fishing. The season lasts six or eight weeks. The fishermen go in and out in their canoes, but though they are allowed to eat and rest while ashore during the fishing season, they are not allowed to speak to a soul, and to touch a woman during that time is pollution so deep that it is punishable with death.

One of the unusual features of Yap and the one most often commented upon by visitors is its stone money. This is called fei and is made of stone quarried in the Pelew Islands, 400 miles to the south.

The coins vary in size from six inches to six feet across. All have holes drilled in the centre through which a pole is thrust to carry the money. If a man is so rich that he has no room for his money indoors he stores it securely on his front lawn.

The price of a pig was four times the weight of the porker even in the days before the High Cost of Living reached the island.

STARTS AN ANTI-VICE DRIVE IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., Jan. 27.—Stirred by complaints of citizens, the Providence police have started an anti-vice crusade. Captain Frank W. Quilty has been investigating the charges and Lieutenant Jerome A. Marble and Detective Sergeant John P. Fleming have been placed back on the vice squad to work with Sergeant George W. Bicknell and his force.

JAPS BLAMED FOR LANGDON'S SLAYING

U. S. Naval Court Finds Boston Officer Was Victim of "Unwarranted Attack"

Washington, Jan. 27.—Lieutenant W. H. Langdon, engineer officer on the United States cruiser Albany, who was shot and killed by a Japanese sentry at Vladivostok, was the victim of an "unwarranted attack."

This was the verdict of the United States naval court of inquiry, whose report on its investigation of the shooting was received by the Navy Department and made public today.

Lieutenant Langdon was shameless, the court of inquiry found. The evidence also substantiated the dead officer's ante-mortem statement that the Japanese sentry fired the first shot.

The report on the findings of the court of inquiry came to Secretary of the Navy Daniels from Admiral Gleaves, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet, at the same time the State Department was getting the Japanese government's official acknowledgement of its protest against the killing of Langdon.

The Japanese reply acknowledges receipt of the protest of the United States and states that a thorough investigation is being made by the Japanese government.

State Department officials indicated that the reply does not close the incident and that further steps will be taken and Japan may be pressed for further action, probably the payment of indemnity.

Lieutenant Langdon, who was shot on January 11, was a graduate of Boston schools and lived with his parents at No. 17 Thomas street, Jamaica Plain, before enlisting in the navy. He was thirty-two years old, and had served ten years in the navy winning steady promotion. Lieutenant Langdon was born in Brandon, Vt., and brought here by his parents when a small boy.

BANK TREASURER BALKS SWINDLER

Springfield, Jan. 27.—Because of the vigilance of Joseph E. Hayes, assistant treasurer of the Atlas Trust Company, a clever attempt to swindle the institution out of a substantial sum of money was averted. It became known today. During the rush hour a man presented a check and got his money. A few minutes after the teller received a message stating that a member of his family was seriously injured. The teller informed his relief that a check had been presented, and then went to the hospital. The depositor again appeared and presented a new check, but the attempt to get double money failed.

PROFESSOR SEDGWICK'S FUNERAL TOMORROW

Funeral services for the late Professor W. T. Sedgwick, senior member of the Tech faculty, who was stricken dead late Tuesday night, will take place at noon tomorrow at the First Unitarian Church, Warren street, Brookline. The Rev. Abbot Peterson will officiate. Students from the biology course at Tech will act as pall bearers, and members from every department of the Tech faculty will be ushers. The honorary pall bearers will include men from the many organizations of which Dr. Sedgwick was a member.

A HOME-MADE GRAY HAIR REMEDY

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy Than You Can Buy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

RAILWAYS ACT TOGETHER FOR WAGE CUT

Meeting in Chicago Tomorrow to Discuss Amount of Pay Reductions

By International News Service.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—A concerted move by the leading railroads of the country to reduce wages of employes is under way today. Authority for the wage reductions will be asked of the United States Railway Labor Wage Board within the next thirty days, it was learned from a reliable source.

The first move toward joint action by the leading railway systems will be discussed here tomorrow when members of the labor committee of the American Association of Railway Executives assemble. This committee will discuss the amount of the reductions to be asked and lay plans for united action by practically all the roads.

Evidence that present railroad rates are not providing the railroads with sufficient income to earn the 6 per cent. guaranteed by the Esch-Cummins law will be laid before the Railway Wage Board. The railway executives also will contend that rates are now as high as business can be expected to bear and that operating forces have been reduced to a minimum consistent with public safety.

The only alternative left, railway executives will contend, is to reduce expenses by cutting wages.

Among the members of the committee to meet here tomorrow are W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania, M. L. Bell of the Rock Island and E. E. Loomis of the Lehigh Valley.

Wage increases of approximately 120 per cent have been given railway workers since the Adamson eight-hour law became effective, railway executives declare, and wage increases, they contend, have accounted for nearly two-thirds of the increase in the operating expenses of the roads.

Vigorous opposition to the proposal of the railway heads is expected from the leaders of the various railway brotherhoods and from the rank and file of the men.

MARLBORO MAN WITH SLEEPING SICKNESS DEAD

Worcester, Jan. 27.—Alessandi Bassile of Marlboro is dead in the City Hospital, the victim of spinal meningitis, brought on, the hospital authorities say, by sleeping sickness. URGES HIGHWAY BE NAMED FOR WEBSTER

Honor for Orator-Statesman Urged by Governor Brown to N. H. Legislature

Concord, N. H., Jan. 27.—Governor Albert O. Brown today sent a special message to the Legislature, approving the recommendation of the New Hampshire Bar Association that one of the State boulevards be named after Daniel Webster.

Governor Brown requested that the road be called "the broad highway," a favorite phrase of the great orator and statesman, and asked that the highway connect some of the places where Webster gained fame and take in roads he travelled.

The highway would run through Nashua, Pembroke, Concord and Boscawen, where stands the little courtroom in which Webster made his first argument to a jury, to a point near a little farmhouse in Salisbury, where the expounder was born, and thence north as far as the State road goes.

The Webster highway would follow the Merrimack River through its entire course in New Hampshire, to Franklin, where the Pemigewasset and Winnepesaukee Rivers unite and form the Merrimack.

It would branch off here, in order to pass Webster's birthplace, then continue northward to the foot of Kearsarge Mountain and the Mascoma River Valley and still farther to the Connecticut River.

A greater part of the road is at present one of the trunk routes in the highway system. The new part would be beyond Franklin. The Bar Association committee which made the recommendations included Judge Edgar Aldrich of the Federal Court, former Governor John H. Bartlett and President Ernest M. Hopkins of Dartmouth College.

Ten Commandments for Children

The seventh of the new ten commandments issued by the Safe Roads Federation of Massachusetts, teaching children how to avoid being struck by automobiles, is as follows:

30 'BILLBOARD TRUST' HEADS INDICTED

Conspiracy to Stifle Competition in Over 40,000 Cities and Towns Hinted

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Thirty alleged members of the "Billboard Trust" were indicted by the Federal grand jury here. They are charged with having plotted criminally to violate the Sherman anti-trust law. A conspiracy to stifle competition in more than 40,000 cities and towns is hinted.

The men named in the indictments are officials of the Poster Advertising Company of New York and the Poster Advertising Association of Chicago, and are well known in their own communities. One of the men lives in Toronto, Canada, which indicated that the grand jurors believe the alleged conspiracy is international in scope.

The indictments say the men "used unfair, tortuous and unlawful tactics."

MEN HELD UP IN SOUTH END AND ROXBURY

Gunmen Who Rob Merchants at Revolver Point Escape With Loot

Two business men were held up at the point of revolvers, a citizen severely beaten and an attempt to rob a grocery store frustrated in Greater Boston within the past few hours. The pair who robbed the merchants escaped with loot.

Stephen Panin, proprietor of a periodical store at No. 45 West Canton street, South End, was robbed of $25 by two men who entered his store masquerading as customers. Shortly after they entered they ordered Panin to throw up his hands and one of the pair pointed a revolver at him. The other looted the cash drawer, after which both fled.

WORK OF LAME PAIR.

Panin reported the robbery to the East Dedham Street Police Station and provided the authorities with a good description of the pair. Both he said, weighed about 150 pounds and wore dark overcoats.

The police believe the same two entered the tailor shop of Harry Maister, No. 1847 Columbus avenue, Roxbury, and after one of them shoved a weapon into the latter's face the other searched his clothing. They obtained but $1.95, all the money there was in the shop, and disappeared.

After Maister had reported this holdup the police sent out an alarm for the pair, the description of whom tallies with that given by the store keeper.

Stanley Lee, colored, of No. 290 Northampton street, Roxbury, who was found wandering aimlessly on Burke street with a severe cut in his head and his face terribly beaten, told the police that he had been set upon by two companions and robbed of $216. He said that they lured him into Burke street and then knocked him down. He was sent to the City Hospital for treatment.

FLED WHEN MEN APPEARED.

The arrival of two customers prevented a holdup in the grocery store of John Taltanes at No. 251 Boylston street, Brookline, when a man entered the establishment and after asking the owner to change a $5 bill for him pointed a gun at him and demanded the contents of the cash register.

Taltanes was about to turn over the money to the robber when two other men walked into the store and before they could seize him the holdup man had fled.

CALLS FOR INQUIRY OF PRINT PAPER PRICES

Washington, Jan. 27.—Senator Harris, Democrat, of Georgia, calls for an inquiry by the Federal Trade Commission of print paper supplies and prices, with a view to ascertaining "why manufactured articles have suffered big declines," in a resolution introduced in the Senate.

Subway Death Leap Due to Hypnotism, Says Professor

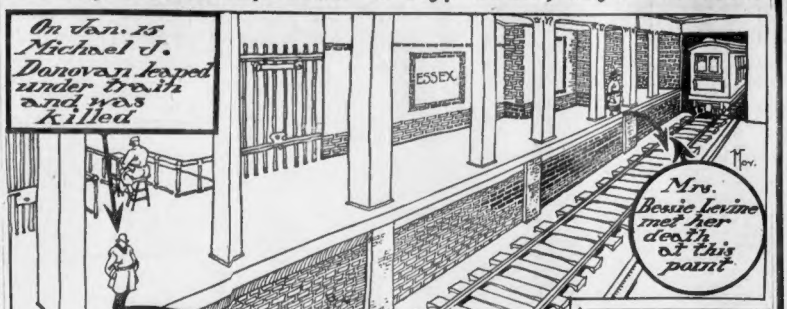

Diagram of Essex street station of the subway showing where within three days two persons met death by being crushed by moving trains. Mrs. Bessie Levine at right, and Michael Donovan at left.

A hypnotic influence—the same impulse that prompts apparently rational persons to leap from high buildings—is the cause of so many men and women jumping to their death in front of swiftly moving subway trains.

This is the consensus of opinion of Boston psychologists and physicians whose attention has again been brought to this subject by two deaths within ten days in the Essex street subway station.

It was this hypnotic call of the oncoming train that caused Michael Donovan of Charlestown to leap to destruction in the subway pit of the Essex street station a week ago, according to these authorities.

And if Mrs. Bessie Levine of South Boston, killed by a train almost in the same spot this week, actually committed suicide her death was due to the same sinister lure, psychologists believe. Members of Mrs. Levine's family, however, deny that she was a suicide.

Professor E. C. Wilm, head of the department of psychology at the Boston University, said today that there is no doubt that the strange desire to leap in front of trains is similar to the desire which many persons confess they have for jumping into space whenever they peer over the edge of a high building.

A similar desire to jump into a swift river current or into high water falls is experienced by many persons, Professor Wilm says.

"There is no doubt that many of the cases are deliberate suicides," the psychologist said. "Other cases are explained as 'temporary insanity.' This temporary insanity, it is believed is the compelling influence of the approaching train. Many persons will confess that they have this feeling whenever they are in the subway station."

The hypnotic desire for self destruction has been a subject for discussion among psychologists for years. One psychologist declares that the sensation is a human inheritance from primeval days, when the ape man, peering from high precipices found himself able to keep from jumping only by exerting a strong will power.

Eifel tower, the famous tower in Paris, was closed above a certain height several years ago after hundreds of persons had dashed themselves to pieces as a result of this hypnotic desire. For the same reason the Custom House tower of Boston was closed after a man had committed suicide by jumping from its dizzy height.

VETERAN CALEDONIANS TO ASSIST AT CLUB FETE

MOTHER OF MURDERED POLICEMAN IS DEAD

Mrs. Ellen T. Riley, mother of Patrolman Thomas J. Riley, who was shot and killed in Cambridge on the morning of November 21, and for whose murder Rocco Selechitano is now on trial in the Middlesex Superior Criminal Court is dead at her home, No. 182 Huron avenue, Cambridge. According to the members of the family Mrs. Riley died of a broken heart.

BLACKHEADS GO QUICK BY THIS SIMPLE METHOD

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—in any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. The calonite powder and the hot water have just dissolved them. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them open and unsightly—and unless the blackheads are big and soft they will not come out, while the simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition. You can get calonite powder at any drug store and if you are troubled with these unsightly blemishes you should certainly try this simple method.—Advertisement.

Cecilian Guild Will Dance Monday

One of the most brilliant balls of the season will be held next Monday evening at the Copley Plaza, when the Cecilian Guild hold their annual mid-Winter assembly. The object of the organization, which has among its members some of the most popular society girls of Greater Boston, is to supply clothing for destitute infants and milk for babies and convalescents, besides taking care of a large pension list. On account of the large number of unemployed this Winter, the success of this dance is greatly needed to further the charitable work of the guild.

Mrs. Jon. McGrath.

Among the prominent members of the guild, headed by Miss Alice Hurley, president, who are energetically working to make the assembly a great success are the Misses Mary Clune, Helen Watson, Elizabeth Sullivan, Agnes Fitzgerald, Marion McGrath, Louise Whelan, Alice Whelan and Mary Little. The patronesses will include Mrs. John T. Bottomley, Mrs. Hugh Nawn, Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, Mrs. John C. Riley and Miss Martha Logan.

KEEP URIC ACID OUT OF JOINTS

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate the acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of the impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is said to make a delightful effervescent drink which is used by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.—Advertisement.

WHY EASTERN EGG PRICES ARE GENERALLY HIGHER

Increase egg production in Massachusetts, but don't expect to get "nearby eggs" as cheaply as Western eggs, even though prices tumble. This is the substance of a statement on "The Hen in Massachusetts," sent out today by Massachusetts Agricultural College. It is pointed out that Massachusetts farmers must make their henneries pay, whereas in the West poultry raising is often conducted as a mere side line providing pin-money for the housewife.

The SHADOW STAGE

Plays Built on Spiritism More Artistically Developed in Movies Than on Stage

THERE IS ONE PLACE WHERE we can see what the interests of the future will be, where we can watch the trend of the times. That is the drama, both stage and screen.

At present mental telepathy and mental influence are being used extensively as themes. Influence that one person can have over another by power of will and the influence that a spirit can have on a living person.

Aside from being a study in itself, it serves to solve complicated plots very neatly. One may not always agree that it's possible or even probable, but the fact remains that it often brings about a happy ending that nothing else can manage.

Shakespeare started it with "Hamlet," then producers left the subject strictly alone until Belasco brought out "The Return of Peter Grimm." Here again a spirit influenced the people he had known on earth.

Movies, of course, lend themselves particularly to this form of story. The "double exposure" and other arts of the camera man make these things seem real. Whereas, on the stage we either see a very human and healthy person walking about the scene with all the other characters foolishly pretending not to see him, or else there is nothing there and we are asked to imagine a spirit form, on the screen we can see a shadowy person, an uncanny, transparent figure that really stands for a spirit—the sort of spirits we imagine.

"EARTHBOUND."

IN "EARTHBOUND," THE PICture made from an original story by Hall King, the spirit of a man leaves the body on his death, but is forced, through his deeds during life, to float about the earth until, through its influence, it sees out happiness to certain persons. As the man's death takes place in the first part of the play, one of the leading characters throughout the picture is the shadowy form. He dominates the scenes entirely, yet is not actually represented by anyone save once when his dog—at least it was his during life—is supposed to recognize him from the scent.

An interesting trick of the trade, by the way, is told in connection with this incident. The spirit is standing directly before a screen, when the dog, to all appearances, sniffs around curiously, then goes wild with joy. It's uncanny to watch, but the explanation is simple. A piece of raw meat is held behind the screen. What dog wouldn't go wild?

There may be, and I believe there has been, some objection brought up against this movement, especially when it's so graphically shown on the screen, but the fact remains that it is growing more and more popular with producers, and no amount of objection can kill it. You can wave a red flag and stop a limited, but no amount of flag-waving will stop a glacier.

ALL-STAR STUNT COMPANY.

WITH THE PRODUCTION OF Arthur Schnitzler's "The Affairs of Anatol," now under way in California under the direction of Cecil DeMille, Paramount pictures have started something new in film-making. The old system of choosing the story for the star has been abandoned, and now the star will be chosen for the story.

"The Affairs of Anatol" is the first production to be made under the new conditions. The cast will include not one star, but several and will be an "all-star cast" in earnest. Wallace Reid as the lead will be supported by Gloria Swanson, who comes back to the screen after an absence of several months. Elliott Dexter, Wanda Hawley, Bebe Daniels, Agnes Ayres, Theodore Roberts, Theodore Kosloff, Dorothy Cummings, Julia Faye, Monte Blue and Raymond Hatton.

The story, originally written for a Viennese stage production, has been translated into almost every language and served to star John Barrymore eight years ago. The play is divided into five episodes, and each of the female principals will have one entire episode to herself. Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson and Elliott Dexter form the central trio who will continue throughout the entire story.

When John Barrymore played it on the stage he was supported by three actresses who have since been starred on the screen, Marguerite Mark, Gail Kane and Gloria Keane.

BENNETT HAUNTS STUDIOS.

ARNOLD BENNETT, WHO HAS signed up to write Paramount stories, threatens to become a nuisance around the studio. He visited one for the first time a few weeks and since then he has fairly haunted the place.

Mr. Bennett feels that it is a mistake to adapt books and plays to the screen. He thinks that the story should be written especially for the player and director and should be written by someone who understands the movies from the inside and out. For that reason he spends a great deal of time strolling around the studios. He watches the different sets and the different methods of the directors, then he goes into the cutting room and the projection department to study the rest of the work.

"There is one thing which, it seems to me," said Mr. Bennett the other day, "must come in time. That is the elimination of captions, or titles. There is no reason why the continuity cannot be written so that the player can tell the story in action and not in words. They are interruptions that spoil the smoothness of the story. It sounds like a stiff proposition, I admit, but I think it will work out eventually."

GLORIA SWANSON.

DR. MANNING IS MADE BISHOP OF NEW YORK

Rector of Trinity Church Elected in Episcopal Convention on Third Ballot

New York, Jan. 27.—In one of the most spectacular conventions in the history of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Rev. William Thomas Manning, rector of Trinity Church, was elected bishop of New York. His election came on the third ballot and immediately was made unanimous.

The third ballot, following the withdrawal of the Rev. Ernest M Stires, rector of St. Thomas' Church, resulted as follows:

Dr. Manning—Clerical, 126; lay, 75.

The Rev. Charles Slattery, rector of Grace Church—Clerical, 108; lay, 64.

Dr. Stires—Clerical, 0; lay, 8.

Total ballot cast—Clerical, 244; lay, 141½; necessary to choice—clerical, 122; lay, 71.

All day there had been a drive against Dr. Manning on the ground that he had been born an Englishman, but the drift on the second ballot indicated that he would be elected. This followed the withdrawal of Dr. Stires. Dr. Manning led on the first ballot, and increased this lead on the second.

FRANCE WARNS DUNCAN ON 'RED' TALK

"Greek Prophet" Haled Before Police for Predicting Return of the Kaiser

Paris, Jan. 27.—Raymond Duncan, who is becoming widely known as the "Prophet of Unrest," intends to begin the publication of a newspaper to give his own peculiar views wide circulation."

He is now holding daily meetings with his disciples, teaching them "go forth and destroy hypocrisy."

Today he instituted a counter suit against Robert Bourbeau, claiming heavy damages for the alleged abduction of his son, Menalkes, who recently disappeared for several days, and for "corruption of the boy's morals."

Following the publication by Duncan of a manifesto in which he asserted that "the return of King Constantine to the Greek throne means the return of the Kaiser to the throne of Germany," Duncan was summoned before the prefect of police. The prefect warned him that unless he discontinued his political propaganda he would be requested to leave France.

To Universal Service today, Duncan said:

"In spite of the warning by the police, I shall not only maintain my right to speak freely on all phases of the suicidal policy of the Allies. I intend to commence immediate publication of my own newspaper in which my views will be given wider circulation."

His suit against Bourbeau followed an action by the latter asking a large sum from Duncan for defamation of character. Bourbeau's action was started when Duncan caused posters to be put up in Paris making grave charges against Bourbeau in connection with the mysterious disappearance of Duncan's fifteen-year-old son, who has been described as the nearest living likeness of Apollo.

FIRE DRIVES 15 WOMEN OUT OF TURKISH BATH

New York, Jan. 27.—A realistic variation of the Broadway play, "Ladies' Night," stopped traffic on the Wintry streets of Brooklyn when fifteen women, patrons of the Clinton Turkish Baths, were driven to the street by a fire. They wore only sheets. Patrolman Halloran gallantly escorted the sheeted beauties to a hotel across the street.

$400 Pay in 1902 Equal to $1,200 in 1920

Washington, Jan. 27.—The fellow who last year sent out friend wife with a market basket and a ten dollar bill and saw her come home with her victuals resting comfortably at the bottom of a small paper bag will consider this superfluous information.

Dr. Frank A. Wolff, physicist of the Bureau of Standards, told the club that a salary of $3,500 in 1920 bought no more food than $1,200 in 1901 and that $1,200 last October was equal to only 400 iron men in 1902.

Continuing to "rub it in," the doctor declared the purchasing power of salaries last Summer was only half as great as in 1914.

Gaming Profits Build Devastated France

Paris, Jan. 27.—France is the greatest nation of gamblers in the world. Statistics show that 2245,000,000 was spent in gambling in state-operated betting booths at race tracks in 1920, giving a clear profit of $27,000,000 for this profit $7,000,000 was spent in the devastated regions.

It is also estimated that an average of forty million francs were risked daily in casinos at Monte Carlo, Cannes, Nice, Mentone and Biarritz. Twelve millions in francs is the estimated daily average of bets made in private gambling clubs scattered throughout France.

The biggest winners at Monte Carlo in January have been Robert Johnson of Chicago, who won $66,000 in three days and Ernest Seiler, famous English sportsman, who won a million francs in ninety minutes.

SCHWAB TO BE CLEARED BY PROBERS

Walsh Committee United in Opinion He Did Not Receive U. S. Money

Washington, Jan. 27.—Exoneration of Charles M. Schwab on the charge of receiving $100,000 from the government during his administration as director-general of the Emergency Fleet Corporation was foreshadowed by members of the Walsh investigating committee today.

"It is the unanimous opinion of the committee," said Representative Steele, Democrat, of Pennsylvania, "that Mr. Schwab did not receive a cent. We feel, moreover, that great injustice has been done him in the statement that he had received $100,000 for 'expenses.' Absolutely no evidence has been produced to show that he received this money or any other money."

Chairman Walsh declined to make a statement. The whole matter, he said, will be laid before the House within a few days.

CHAMBER IN FIGHT TO KEEP DAYLIGHT SAVING

The Boston Chamber of Commerce will be one of six large commercial bodies to send delegates to New York, February 3, to form an Eastern Zone Daylight Saving Association. The meeting will be held in the headquarters of the Merchants' Association. Other organizations represented will be the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' Association of New York, the Manufacturers' Council of New Jersey and the Manufacturers' Association of Baltimore. The new association will work for a national daylight saving law, meanwhile seeking to have States and cities having daylight saving laws enforcement of their own retain them.

LICENSE COAL DEALERS, URGES CHAIRMAN RICE

Licensing of all coal dealers as provided in a bill before the Massachusetts Legislature was urged by Representative Abbot R. Rice, chairman of the House Committee on Education, before the Boston Woman's Civic Club at the Hotel Brunswick. Representative Rice said that the State should also supervise the quality of coal sold at various prices.

BAKER ADMITS BERGDOLL IS IN GERMANY

War Secretary Says Question of Extradition Left to State Department

Washington, Jan. 27.—Secretary of War Baker, in discussing Berlin dispatches reporting an attempt by army intelligence officers to kidnap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, fugitive draft evader of Philadelphia, made today what was regarded as the first official admission that Bergdoll is in Germany.

In answer to a question regarding what could be done about extradition in event Bergdoll were captured in Germany, the Secretary of War stated:

"That question has been put up to the State Department."

However, in advance of official reports on the Berlin incident, Secretary Baker would not discuss the Bergdoll case. He would not even admit that the department had military intelligence officers in Berlin, although it is well known that this government is represented in the German capital.

Arrest Pair Who Aided in Attempt to Kidnap Bergdoll

Berlin, Jan. 27.—After the sensational attempt to kidnap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll and forcibly bring him within American jurisdiction was me'e, Karl Neaf and Frank Denver, who are reported say are detectives from America and by others credited with being soldiers of the army of occupation, were dressed by the German police, together with their chauffeur, and three alleged German accomplices, named Hildebrand, Gustav Steiger, Gottfried Kein and August Farnbuch.

The German helpers claim that they were promised fifty thousand marks if the kidnaping job was successful.

Sentenced to Reformatory

Lee, Jan. 27.—For abandoning her three-months-old baby, Fannie Holstein, twenty-one, of Pittsfield, was sentenced to the reformatory at Sherborn. Her sister, Mrs. Hilda Westerholm, received the same sentence for aiding and abetting her.

EDWARDS RETURNS FROM NIAGARA FALLS TRIP

Brigadier-General Clarence R. Edwards, former commander of the 26th Division, and Mrs. Edwards have returned to Westwood from a visit of several weeks to Niagara Falls. General Edwards' leave of absence expires March 7. Major-General David C. Shanks, commander of the First Army Corps, is now on leave of absence. He has left Costa Rica for Florida, where he will remain with Mrs. Shanks for six weeks and then return to Boston.

MRS. HARDING GOING TO NEW YORK FOR GOWNS

Washington, Jan. 27.—A task that occupies but few American women, packing up for a stay in the White House, continues to engross the days of Mrs. Warren G. Harding, wife of the President-elect, who is spending the week in Washington.

At the end of the week Mrs. Harding will leave for New York, where she will have fittings of the new gowns she is having made for the ceremonies on March 4 and her first entertainments in the White House.

Eat Enough A Safe Rule

Have No Fear of Sour Stomach, Gassiness or Distress Due to Indigestion or Dyspepsia

From the daily food the system must have a diversified supply of materials or parts of the digestive machinery will quit for lack of work.

Therefore, to cut down food or go on a starvation diet calls for a degree of selective knowledge that very few men possess. The best plan is to eat anything you like, and as much of a variety as possible. Follow meals with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet and you supply the stomach with an alkaline effect which enables digestion to go on without gassiness, rumblings, water brash, biliousness, coated tongue, abnormal thirst, and the feeling of drowsiness after eating. Get a 25 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store and you will realize why so many physicians have recommended them for indigestion and dyspepsia.

F. I. F. DEMANDS SIMS BE MADE TO APOLOGIZE

Greater Boston Council Wires Daniels to Act on "Slander of Irish Race"

Greater Boston Council, Friends of Irish Freedom, has requested Secretary of the Navy Daniels to take action to compel Admiral Sims either to substantiate or to apologize for declaring at Symphony Hall, Tuesday night, that "Sinn Fein fought America behind our backs and was the implacable enemy of America during the war," which statement is denounced as untrue and slanderous to the Irish race.

The following telegram was sent to the Secretary by Matthew Cummings, president of the council:

ASKS OFFICAL INQUIRY.

Hon. Josephus Daniels,
Secretary of Navy,
Washington, D. C:

Admiral Sims said at a public meeting in Boston last evening: "That Sinn Fein fought America during the war as bitterly as the Germans; that a great many of our sons were at the bottom of the sea, because he was obliged to divert vessels and was unable to convoy troops and merchant ship, because of the fight Sinn Fein was making behind our backs." He also said that Sinn Fein was the implacable enemy of America during the war.

We, of course, realize that he does not represent the sentiments of American naval officers, but the fact remains that he speaks as an Admiral of the American Navy. Therefore as his statements are based entirely on prejudice and not on facts, and his statements slander a race that have ever and always demonstrated their friendship and loyalty to America, you are earnestly requested to demand of Admiral Sims that he submit to you, or, to a board of naval officers selected by you concrete facts that will substantiate his statements, and failing to do that compel him to make a public retraction and force him to apologize to the Irish people for his slanderous utterances.

OVER 1,000,000 IRISH IN WAR.

"Undoubtedly the purpose of Admiral Sims is to have it written into histories that are now being compiled of the World War that the Irish were disloyal to America," said Mr. Cummings.

"A greater slander was never uttered, and because of old historic friendship existing between Ireland, France and Belgium, and because of the promise made by President Wilson of the right of self-determination of all nations, Ireland gave voluntarily to the cause of the Allies more than 250,000 men. In proportion to her population, a greater number than was given by the United States. More than 250,000 native-born Irishmen living in Canada and Australia also volunteered their services in the World War. Those men thought they were fighting for the rights of small nations.

"Admiral Sims now ignores the services of these men and asks the American people to forget the services rendered by the Irish people during the war, and to rally to the support of Anglo-Saxon ideals.

SIMS "IDEALS" BARBAROUS.

"We have splendid examples of these ideals as practised in Ireland today. Women and children and old men are starved, maltreated, outraged and murdered by order of the British government. Their houses and property are burned and civilians shot indiscriminately, in order to terrorize a liberty loving people into submission.

"These are the ideals that Admiral Sims stands for. He brings discredit on our splendid American Navy by such utterances and he undoubtedly will again be rebuked and repudiated by his superiors as he was before.

"The Friends of Irish Freedom will call a mass meeting at the earliest possible date, and expose Sims and Putnam and the other British propagandists who are trying to make this republic a federated State of the British Empire."

"SPECIES OF CUTTLEFISH."

Edward F. McSweeney criticised Armiral Sims and Major Putnam severely before an audience in Central Square Hall, Cambridge, for their utterances at the Loyal Coalition meeting. He characterized the speakers as "a species of cuttlefish whose purpose it is to discolor the clear stream of historical truth, so that the story of the newer epoch may be first presented to the world in a form approved by England."

"It is a source of satisfaction to the American people," he said, "to know that in spite of the powerful forces behind the Sims, Putnam, Winter, Nicholas Murray Butler group there has been a complete revulsion of feeling against these propagandists in the United States.

"Since Ambassador Geddes has been in this country he has failed in every essential matter in which he was interested, including world control of oil and allied cables, the Panama Canal tolls matter, the abatement of the war debt and the Anglo-American Alliance, miscalled the League of Nations."

HEAVY FIRE LOSS IN TWO LAWRENCE STORES

Lawrence, Jan. 27.—Fire caused heavy loss to a large stock of men's clothing at the store of A. Bressler, No. 182 Essex street, and to the stock of the Grand Rapids Furniture Company adjoining. For a time it was feared that the entire building block near Essex and Jackson streets would be destroyed. Engineers from the fire headquarters are investigating the cause.

VELVET WORKERS STRIKE OVER REDUCTION IN PAY

Stonington, Ct., Jan. 27.—Weavers employed by the American Velvet Company have gone on strike, as the result of the company's announcement that the wages of these operatives will be cut from 35 to 40 per cent. Following this declaration by mill officials the workers held a meeting and voted to strike.

Another Candle for Bond Bread-and two birthday gifts for you

THIS week celebrates Bond Bread's second birthday. But Bond Bread prefers to give rather than to receive.

So Bond Bread offers you two gifts in celebration of this week two years ago when local housewives submitted 6405 loaves of home-made bread to be used as patterns for Bond Bread.

Bond Bread's first Birthday gift to you can not be weighed or measured or tested—any more than you can weigh the chuckle of a child or the fragrance of a rose.

For Bond Bread's First Gift is Gratitude—heart-felt thanks to the housewives, who are its foster mothers—to the boys and girls—to the fathers and mothers who have made Bond Bread a part of their homes.

Bond Bread's Second Gift to you is a gift that can be weighed—that can be measured and seen and tested. This gift is Quality. It means this:

Each loaf will continue to contain a little better, a little purer, and a little costlier ingredients, a little higher degree of baking skill than you ever thought possible except in the very, very best home-made bread.

Bond Bread will continue to deserve its leadership—continue to justify the Bond—printed on every wrapper.

That Bond guarantees that each ingredient is as pure and wholesome as you ever used in your own home—and that no substitutes of any kind are used in Bond Bread.

Bond Bread's fascinating story

Jan. 11, 1919 "What kind of bread do you and your families like to eat?" We asked the women of Boston and vicinity.

Jan. 18, 1919 6405 women of Boston and vicinity responded by bringing their own loaves of delicious home-made bread to be used as models for the new Bond Bread.

A committee of prominent local women selected the prize loaves from this mountain of home-made bread.

Jan. 19, 20, 21 Skillful bakers worked day and night in our clean, sanitary bakeries to copy the appearance, taste, texture and wholesomeness of those beautiful prize loaves of home-made bread.

Jan. 22, 1919 The new Bond Bread Process at last perfected, Bond Bread (so-named because the purity of each home ingredient is guaranteed by our Bond) was given to the public who eagerly awaited it.

Bond Bread is so named because each loaf bears this bond of the General Baking Company.

Know all men by these Presents that GENERAL BAKING COMPANY
as held and firmly bound unto the Purchaser of this Loaf of Bond Bread
these same and a fair one and hereby warrant, that the loaf of Bread contained within this Germ-Proof and Dust-Proof Wrapper is made from the following

Stocks Weak in New York; Sterling Continues to Climb

STEELS LED A MODERATE DECLINE

Market Quiet and Prices Movement Narrow; Rails, Oils and Sugars Are Irregular

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were rather weak in New York, although losses ruled so small that a little change would have made the list look strong. Steels led the decline. Rails, oils and sugars were irregular. Coppers had a better tone at the end of the morning. Trading was dull in the second hour and transactions in the first totaled 134,000 shares. There was slight improvement in prices late in the forenoon.

Strongest issues were American Sugar, American Can, Royal Dutch, International Paper and Marine preferred. They were up from one to more than two points. Weakest were Studebaker, Sears Roebuck, Crucible, Republic Steel and General Asphalt. They were down from one to about three points at their lowest.

Call money opened at 7 per cent. The strength of demand sterling featured the foreign exchange market. It resumed its climb and was quoted at $3.36 soon after the opening. This is the highest in six months or more.

BAD UNSTEADY START.

While the morning's were up at the opening stocks were unsteady and a recessional began immediately. The market was weak before selling pressure relaxed. Then it rallied and at the end of an hour was irregular. Price changes were average small, and it did not take much of a movement to change the prevailing list. Early features were American Can, which sold at its highest for this year and was active; International Paper, Royal Dutch and Texas Co. and Oil. All made good gains and were in fairly demand. General Asphalt continued to be prominent and after selling fractionally higher reacted until it was off nearly two points. Crucible was the weakest steel. Sales and coppers were firm and oils irregular. Neither class was active. Atlantic Gulf continued its shipping issue in evidence. It sold lower. Tires and equipments declined. Leathers were firm in evidence. There was very little business in sugars, which had a downward trend.

LITTLE BORROWING DEMAND.

Borrowing demand for stocks was light in the loan market after the first exchange had closed. Trade with the exception of Crucible. There was considerable call for the issue. As a rule, industrials loaned at 7 per cent, and rails at 6 per cent. For Mexican Petroleum 2 per cent was asked, while Crucible and Sears-Roebuck loaned flat. A leading brokerage house estimates that the street loans as ranging from $803,000,000 to $750,000,000 at present. A year ago they aggregated about $1,000,000,000, and in July, 1919, were estimated at $1,750,000,000. The advance of foreign exchange rates is regarded as reflecting a hopeful outlook for international trade. It is taken as an indication that European business and economic conditions are going better. The advance of sterling is especially satisfactory. The diminution of stock market activity had traders expected with business in its present shape. The public is more interested at home in fixed value securities than in speculating in them. While it has decreased in volume, call loi buying still continues on considerable scale.

TRADING DULL AND PRICES LOWER

Boston List Is Heavy All the Morning; Curb Active During a Recessional

There was a heavy tone to stocks at the opening of the Boston exchange, losses of one point or more was the status of the market all the morning. It was as lacking in breadth as before this week. Comparatively few stocks were dealt in and price changes were fractional with few exceptions. Coppers were irregular, reflecting the metal situation. Small sellers and some large producers are reported to be ready to shade the present quotations in order to get any of the little business in sight. Packing shares eased off. Rails were neglected. United Fruit quickly lost its initial gain of a point, but more losses were sustained by Allouez, Isle Royale, American Sugar, Boston Elevated and Agricultural Chemical.

Among fractionally lower stocks were American Woolen preferred Mexican Petroleum, Lee Rubber, Fairfield Tap, Libby, Swift & Co., Swift and International and Calumet. Issues to make small gains included Copper Range, Ventura, Carson Hill, Highland and Waltham Watch.

CURB ACTIVE AND WEAK.

The Curb was active this morning and opened with an irregular price movement. It weakened during the morning. Early leaders were Boston and Montana, Crystal, and Eureka. Issues to make gains at the opening were: Allied Oil, Arizona Silver, Bagdad, Crystal, Mexican Oil, Seven Metals and Texana. Among those to recede at once were: Boston and Montana, Cascade, Allied Mining, Denbigh, Mutual and Randolph.

At the end of an hour Boston and Montana had rallied and was up 2 cents at 70 cents, while losses included Eureka 4 cents at 96 cents, Allied Mining 2 cents at 24 cents, Cascade 2 cents at 17 cents, Denbigh 1 cent at 11 cents, Pilot National 5 cents at 52 cents, Merrimac Development 1 cent at 8 cents, Mutual 2 cents at 5 cents and Randolph 15 cents at 55 cents.

ASPHALT HOLDS SPOTLIGHT IN WALL STREET

Advance Is Marked by Mystery; Spurt in Rails Soon Fades Away

By BROADAN WALL.
Registered, U. S. Patent Office.

New York, Jan. 27.—Yesterday's stock market furnished additional evidence of the strength underlying speculative conditions, although it must be admitted that this conclusion must be arrived at by inference rather than direct proof.

Conspicuous in the day was the sharing of orders in the stock markets from the large banking interests that always control speculation when it is worth while to make or break a market.

PLANNING A CAMPAIGN.

It may be inferred that like wise generals these bankers are concentrating their forces for a campaign, and it can be stated on the authority of one of the largest of the international bankers that funds are being conserved for operations of an international character of a magnitude never touched in periods prior to the war.

The sharp rise in sterling exchange in the early dealings rather confirmed a rumor that an early announcement might be expected indicating a favorable attitude by the incoming administration towards our foreign debtors and the early establishment of closer financial relations which will quickly stimulate an export business.

SOME WEAK SPOTS.

The market was not without its weak spots, although in most cases these were temporary. Sinclair Oil was under pressure and St. Paul preferred showed heaviness. The liquidation in these issues is attributed to the winding up of an account of a ton of capital of the previous generation. Liquidation of this character may be looked for for some time to come, but it is in no sense threatening although it may be expected to cease when the market grows weak.

For a short time during the day it appeared that the rails might become active. There was a spurt in Great Northern preferred and Northern Pacific with a rally in Union, but the movement faded as it has so frequently done in the past.

General Asphalt held the spotlight of speculative interest. Mystery still surrounds the advance, but credit must be given to the manipulators who have handled the market cleverly and successfully.

FARM PRODUCTS VALUED AT TWENTY BILLIONS

Crops and animals produced on farms in this country in 1920 are valued at nearly twenty billions dollars in the estimate given out by the department of agriculture. Its exact figure is $19,836,000,000. This is an enormous amount, but it is 25.08 per cent below the valuation of the production in 1919.

What this country annually produces on its farms is now about one-fifth as a few billions of its national inheritance. It is one demonstration of its wealth and resources.

Joplin Ore Prices

Zinc and lead ore prices were steady in the Joplin market last week, but less business was done than in the previous week, when $50 and $51 was paid for lead. Purchases ranged around 6,000 tons for zinc ores and 800 ton for lead ores.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Wheat opened 7c to 1 lower. Corn started 5c to 1c lower and early sales were unchanged after and 10 to 15c lower for lard and ribs. Opening prices: Wheat—March, 1.63 to 1.63½; May, 1.63¾ to 1.

MORAN AND CARPENTIER TO MEET ABROAD IN TITLE BATTLE

DEMPSEY BOUT FOR WINNER

New Promoter Plans to Hold Fight in July—Yankee Already Signed

London, Jan. 27.—"I expect to go to Paris this week-end to gain Carpentier's signature to meet Moran for the heavyweight championship of Europe, the fight to take place the coming July. Moran has already agreed."

This statement was made today by Major J. H. Wilson, who succeeded Charles Cochan as the most important fight promoter in Great Britain. He said:

"I saw Carpentier and Descamps today before the Frenchmen went to Paris. He is entirely agreeable to meet Moran provided he does not demand as any chance he has to meet Dempsey and get big money.

"Wilson explained that Carpentier is an absolutely free agent, open to meet any one. He believes his chances to beat Moran are known differently at the temporary match is off. According to Wilson there is no chance for a Frenchman to meet Dempsey except in New York.

"Moran is an interview said:

"After today's negotiations it is possible that Carpentier and myself will weigh in at 170 pounds. I don't care about the purse. I simply want a chance to show my superiority over Georges.

"I am certain everyone in Europe that he has and I am entitled, more than anyone, to meet him; the winner to meet Dempsey."

Wilson said that Carpentier is exceptionally reasonable in his demand and declared that the admission prices would be reasonable.

WRESTLERS ARE KEEN TO GET AT ONE ANOTHER

Gardner and Ajax Will Not Ask or Give Quarters in Bout at Grand

No quarter asked nor given," appears to be the feeling of both Tony Ajax and Pinky Gardner regarding their battle this evening at the Grand Opera House, for if ever two middleweight wrestlers ever felt more confident in their lives it is this same pair of mat burners.

Each is in town fit and anxious for the call to the canvas and has both been noted for their terrific speed as well as cleverness the contest promises to make wrestling history in this weight divis on.

Gardner Never in Better Shape

Gardner was certainly never in better form than he is at present. The same goes for Ajax, although a lot of people seem to think the weight will bother him. Tony says not and he should know, for he is backing himself, as he always does, with his own money.

The man will go to a positive finish under championship rules, with a stashing preliminary to settle a grudge between Tommy Berard and Billy Goodwin, both Somerville welterweights. In their previous meeting Goodwin surprised the fans by winning decisively over his popular townsman.

MOORE TOO SPEEDY FOR YOUNG MONTREAL

New York, Jan 27 Pal Moore, the Memphis bantam, received no judges' decision over Young Montreal in a fifteen-round fight at Madison Square Garden.

Stories of Famous Fights

Terry McGovern Stops Erne

This is the twentieth of a series of "Old Time" battles by authorities on pugilism who were famous in their day. Others will follow.

This story tells of the night on Madison Square Garden when Terry McGovern, "the indomitable," stopped Frank Erne in the third round of their fight. In this battle McGovern, aside the wonderful display of Erne and, by sheer force, battered the great fighter into submission in a short time. The fight was staged July 19, 1900.

By W. W. Naughton

With a face like a piece of liver, a chest coated with his own clotted blood, nose split, eyes closed, head fuzzing and legs wobbling, Frank Erne took his place last night in the long list of Terry McGovern's victims.

The Brooklyn boy beat him down in less than three rounds. No more vicious encounter has been seen in New York city in years. Erne came to the core, stood up to the invincible power of the little terror, and the big crowd shrieked in pity for him while yelling plaudits for his conqueror.

McGovern Appears Unbeatable.

Until the day when one man in a fight is allowed to use one-half his gloves it doesn't appear that McGovern's conqueror could be found and the terrific style of fistic battering that he uses in the ring. The battle ended in quiet, progressed in a whirlwind and ended in a tragedy of sound.

The wild, crazed cat-spitting at Erne came to life at the beginning of the third round. So ferocious was the swing blow was started, ended in an indescribable vocal explosion when Erne gave up, will ring in the ears of those who heard it for days.

The third and final round, started with McGovern tearing at Erne in his bulldog fashion. He forced Erne into a corner and landed right and left to the head before Erne could escape. Erne was in a bad way. He was breathing heavily and his every effort to get inching every available inch out, but pressed to be held enough strength for it at

Rules Governing Movie Player Identity Test

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's new Movie Picture Players' Identification Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred nineteen cash awards will be given by these two newspapers to their readers who submit the largest percentage of correct identifications to the 120 pictures to be published in these two newspapers.

All employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser, and their families, and all moving picture players and persons connected with the moving picture industry are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The Test will consist of 120 pictures of favorite moving picture players, to be printed two each day, in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, first picture Sunday, December 19, 1920.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which shall be run by the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar anyone from entering this Test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE identification to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award, and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every identification must be neatly written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser or on a page of some book form by itself, accompanied either by the picture furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each identification blank.

Do not send your identification in "list" form, i. e., do not write identifications under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct identifications, awards will be given to the persons submitting the largest percentage of correct identifications.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and correct accuracy in spelling, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way, the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their identifications before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your identifications from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first identifications sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All identifications must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Test Headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within specified time limit, which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing identifications must be legibly addressed as follows: "Movie Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 239," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all identifications will contain written or printed matter, if mailed, it is absolutely necessary that the package be fully opened at postal letter rates, as mail of this character goes to the postoffice as first class matter. The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to refuse to consider any sets of identifications on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Movie Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered, as far as possible, through the columns of the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser, if participants desire personal replies, they should enclose sufficient postage for such reply, or they may phone Main 5180, or call in person.

The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserves the right to make any changes in, or addition to these conditions that may be deemed necessary for fairly and properly conducting the test. Decision of the Editor on any question will be final. Entry of participant in a contest is acceptance of all conditions now made or to be made.

NEW ENGLAND'S FORESTS SLAIN, SAYS AYRES

"Dance of Death" Going on Unchecked, He Tells House Committee

By International News Service.

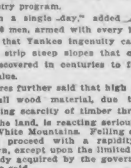
Washington, Jan. 27.—"The dance of death is proceeding merrily in New England forests," declared Philip W. Ayres of the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests, appearing today before the House Agricultural Committee considering the Snell bill for a national forestry program.

"In a single day," added Ayres, "3,000 men, armed with every invention that Yankee ingenuity can devise, strip steep slopes that cannot be restored in centuries to forests of value.

Ayres further said that high prices for all wood material, due to the growing scarcity of timber throughout the land, is reacting seriously in the White Mountains. Willing operations proceed with a rapidity unknown, except upon the limited areas already acquired by the government, Ayres said.

"The public has to pay the fiddler in this 'dance of death' to which Ayres refers," said Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Forestry Association.

Others who spoke included Elbert H. Baker of Cleveland, representing the American Publishers' Association; Alfred Gaskill, forester of eNw Jersey, representing the foresters of twenty-one States; R. S. Kellogg, chairman of the National Forestry Program Committee, and others.



Do This For Constipation

THE public should know that there is a vast difference in the action of the various remedies for constipation. Some are "flushes," purges, physics. They gripe and weaken.

The lasting effect use a laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin acts gently and mildly so that even a tiny baby can use it with safety. It is a compound of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. A sixty-cent bottle will last an average family many months.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the most popular of all laxatives and more is used in American homes than any other. Last year eight million bottles were sold by druggists, the largest sale in the world.

RUBY DE REMER.

Ruby De Remer, who appears in the leading woman's role in "The Passionate Pilgrim," a Cosmopolitan picture, presented by Paramount at the Modern and Boston Theatres beginning next Monday, has been declared by Paul Helleu, the famous artist, to be one of the handsomest young women in the world. Miss De Remer is a blonde and possesses in addition to her handsome face, a remarkably beautiful figure.

She had the distinction of having had her portrait on the front page of seventeen leading magazines within the past three months. Her face has also adorned many front pages of popular songs and recently a big milk company used her portrait in one million dollars' worth of national advertising.

Miss De Remer is a product of Denver, Colorado. When a mere child, in her early teens she went on the stage and soon became a favorite in Ziegfeld's productions. She made her first appearance on the screen in "The Auction Block," and later scored a big success in "Pins of Faith." She now plays the leading woman's role in this latest Cosmopolitan production. The character in which she is cast gives her opportunity to show unusual versatility.

FERRIS AGAIN HEADS MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION

Addressing members of the Massachusetts Retail Merchants' Association at their annual meeting and dinner in Young's Hotel, Louis K. Liggett reiterated his prediction that normal business conditions would return by October 1.

"Bankers tell me," he said, "that they never knew a time when the small investor was placing so much money."

For the first time in the history of the organization women attended the banquet.

President Charles C. Ferris was re-elected, and other officers chosen were:

H. C. Asselin of Almy, Bigelow & Washburn, Salem, first vice-president; C. H. Johnson of Burrows & Russell, Lowell, second president; A. B. Wallace of Forbes & Wallace, Springfield, third vice-president; Robert M. Hazzard of R. H. Stearns Company, Boston, treasurer; directors, Fred A. COMEDIAN ONCE WANTED TO BE BIG LEAGUER

Baseball Lost Possible Star When Scotty Friedell Became Actor

Baseball may have missed another Babe Ruth or Ty Cobb, when Scotty Friedell of the Victory Belles company at Waldron's Casino this week passed up the game to become an actor. He played baseball, football, and engaged in almost every other sport, before he finally decided to take up the sport of making people laugh. He had shown every indication a ball player as he is a comedian the public would have heard from him. He was a schoolboy star, and in being made into one his baseball and football training stood him in good stead.

No big football game or fight ever takes place without his presence, he is a real baseball fan, who enjoys the skill of the players as much as audience appreciation of his own mirth-inspiring characteristics.

COWBOY BY ACCIDENT.

"It was funny about me being a cowboy," mused Scotty. "When I was a boy I went to work in a foundry and learned to be a boilermaker and I worked at that for some time. I used to play baseball and football on every vacant lot and I have a scrapbook at home now that is filled with notes of my games. It looked for a while as if I might be a big leaguer.

"We had a quartet where I used to live and we won a prize because that we attracted considerable attention. Finally an offer was made for us to go on the stage and I accepted. And here I am.

"My first part was what you might call successful. Our company got as far from Broadway as South Ends, Ohio, and I was in no hurry about getting back home again. That was where my athletic training came in good. For a ranchman looking over the company, picked me out and asked me if I wanted work.

"Well, after we reached his ranch, he asked me if I could ride a horse. When I told him I couldn't he said the boys would arrange that. He smiled to himself when he said it and I wondered why, but I found out afterward. The boys saw to it all right.

BOYS HAD FUN.

"He took me out to the ranch house and introduced me to the boys. Every one of them seemed to be provided with a horse. They explained away my curiosity by saying that everyone in that country had to and then they assured me it would be fun for me to learn. It was—for them.

"Ever hear the difference between the height of a horse when you're on your feet looking at him and when you get on his back for the first time? This must have been a volcano they put me on because the first thing I remember was falling through space.

"Did you ever dream about falling into a bottomless pit and then wake up? Well, I thought about the bottomless pit when I hit the dirt, but instead of waking up I went to sleep when I landed. They splashed a cold water on me and after that proceeded to really learn to ride. It was great fun for the cowboys while it lasted."

SWAMPSCOTT WOMAN LEFT FUNDS TO CHARITY

CORPORATIONS TOLD HOW TO PAY U. S. TAX

Religious, Charitable and Scientific Organizations May File Exemption Claim

The Bureau of Internal Revenue estimates that there will be filed on or before March 15, 1921, approximately 475,000 corporation returns covering the calendar year 1920.

The revenue act of 1918 provides that every corporation, joint-stock company, association, and insurance company not specifically exempt is liable to tax, and except where exempted and the accounting period ends other than on December 31 the return must be filed by March 15 with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the corporation's principal place of business is located.

FORMS FOR CORPORATIONS.

Form 1120 is used by every corporation (except personal service corporations), domestic and foreign, subject to taxation for filing its income and profits tax return. Form 1,065 is used by personal service corporations. The return must be sworn to by the president, vice-president or other principal officer and by the treasurer or assistant treasurer.

Certain corporations, such as labor, agricultural, and horticultural organizations, corporations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, business and civic leagues, farmers' and fruit growers' marketing associations, may, by establishing their exemption, be relieved of the duty of filing returns and paying the tax.

No corporation is exempt from filing a return until its status has been determined by the collector and the corporation so informed.

Every corporation must file its return on the basis of its existing accounting period, which is established as the twelve-month period ending on December 31 or upon the last day of some month other than December. The corporation can not change its accounting period without permission of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

EXCESS PROFITS TAX.

The commissioner will not approve a change of basis of computing net income unless the notice is given at least thirty days before the due date of the return on the return period, and at least thirty days prior to the due date of the return on the proposed basis.

In general, the taxable net income of a corporation is its accounting net income, but a corporation may not deduct donations and gratuities, nor its personal income and profits taxes be deducted.

In place of the surtax imposed upon individuals, there is levied upon corporations, in addition to the normal tax, an excess profits tax. The corporation which is subject to this tax begins with the determination of the corporation's net income for the year.

Invested capital, as defined by the law, is the amount of cash and tangible property paid in for stock or shares, together with the paid-in or earned surplus and undivided profits of the beginning of the taxable year.

The value of intangible property paid in for stock or shares in an amount as limited by section 326 of the revenue act of 1918, may also be included in invested capital. The term "intangible property" means patents, copyrights, secret processes and formulas, good will, trade-marks, trade brands, franchises and other like property.

BORROWED CAPITAL.

Borrowed capital can not be included in invested capital. Adjustment must be made for inadmissible assets, which are defined as stocks, bonds and other obligations (other that obligations of the United States), and dividends or the interest from which is not included in computing net income.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue carefully examines and audits returns of corporations, and whenever necessary makes changes in the returns.

Severe penalties may be imposed upon corporations for delinquency in filing returns, fraud or negligence in the understatement of one's tax. So it is important that the corporation in filing its return follows closely the instructions printed on the return form.

"Immense Throng" Out to Hear Blatherskite Sims

Our good neighbor, the Boston Post, makes a front page story of the ridiculous charge by a ridiculous man, Admiral Sims, that many Americans lie in the bottom of the ocean because the Sinn Fein in Ireland compelled the British "to divert vessels from the convoy of troops and merchant ships that would have been otherwise employed in protecting them."

Our good neighbor also says that an "immense throng" of 3,500 people jammed the meeting. Now why call 3,500 people in Boston an "immense throng" when 50,000 turned out to welcome President De Valera? What would the Post call 50,000 people? You ought to get at least 25,000 to see that curious specimen of an American admiral whom President Taft was obliged to rebuke for improper pro-British statements when Sims was representing the United States in Great Britain before the war in the Taft administration, and whom Secretary of the Navy Daniels was obliged to warn that he must be an American and not an Englishman when he went over to England to represent us the second time, and of whom, in spite of that warning, the Secretary of the Navy publicly testified that he was obliged often to order him expressly and severely to listen to advice from his home superiors and pay less attention to the British naval officers.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels said that Admiral Sims threw aside with contempt suggestions and advice from our naval staff if the British naval staff so much as blinked an eye or curled a lip at it. Moreover, Secretary Daniels showed that the greatest naval feat performed by the allies during the war was the North Sea torpedo barrage devised by Americans, suggested by Americans and turned down by Admiral Sims, because it did not meet with the approval of the British naval staff, and finally ordered by the direct command of the President and Secretary Daniels to be put into effect over the head of Admiral Sims.

For a cheap blatherskite and inverted American, American history does not afford Sims' equal. The announcement that such a specimen was going to appear and to talk ought to have drawn everybody in Boston who likes to look at curiosities, and there must be 50,000 of them in Boston. How it happened that an "immense throng" did not really turn out to see Sims, as the Boston Post alleges, we do not understand, unless all the curiosity seekers were discouraged by the fact that this notorious curiosity was to be seen only by ticket.

Senator Walsh's Stalwart Democracy Unabated

We observe that Senator Walsh of Massachusetts is the only New England Senator who voted for the bill which has just passed the Senate proposing to regulate the business of the beef packers so that we may not be the victims of extortion in the necessaries of life controlled by the Beef Trust.

This is the first step in a long, long struggle to regulate an industry which has become a monopoly through the illicit favor of the railroads under private management. The struggle has been bitter. The packers have defended themselves valiantly and skilfully, and with all the great power which money exerts in this country.

Senator Walsh in this instance, as in all our public concerns, stands for the interest of the average man and not against the interest of the organized minority, but against their unjust claims.

In the steel strike investigation he showed greater courage than any man on his committee in demanding the truth. In the coal investigation he has been among the most vigorous champions of New England's interests. He is for America first. He believes that charity begins at home. He is not disappointing to us. Serving now his third year in a body where a man's democracy has to be robust to survive, he still shows no abatement in his democratic character.

We wonder how he feels about the selection of Arthur Lyman to be the head of the Democratic State Committee. We wonder if he expects the Democratic organization to help him in his chosen course in the Senate with Mr. Arthur Lyman at the head of that organization.

Add Fire Waste and Safety Teaching in Schools

There are two proposals before the Legislature this year. One is to require the instruction of our school children throughout the State in the method of fire prevention. The other is to provide instruction to the same children in practicing the habits of carefulness with respect to dangers to their persons.

Both these proposals are worth serious consideration. We have had frequent occasion to call public attention to the notorious and unhappy fact that America is the most wasteful nation in the world and that America's greatest waste is in preventable fires. When we think of the poverty in America, the amount of wealth that we waste through preventable fires is ghastly. If we could spend upon our worthy poor what is lost through fires and does nobody good our poor would be negligible in numbers.

Fires are mostly the result of carelessness, thoughtlessness and a lack of knowledge of fire prevention methods. The instruction of our children in the methods of fire prevention, even if it does not help us to learn effective fire prevention, will help our psychology concerning fires and will greatly impress upon our minds the necessity of being careful about fires. In that respect it will probably do a great deal of good.

This also is true with respect to safety. The Governor, in his inaugural address, called our attention to the fact that more than 1,500 had been killed and more than 50,000 had been injured on our streets during the last three years. A large portion of these casualties occurred to children. If instruction as to methods of safety does nothing more than make that dent in the brain cell which predisposes our cerebration concerning the danger upon our highways, the instruction will be worth while. As with instruction in fire prevention this proposed instruction in danger prevention is a question of psychology largely. On the surface of it we should think that the proposals were feasible.

A Lost Soul Rescued

By S. E. KISER

I USED to like to find a quiet nook,
And there forget perplexities of trade;
With restful entertainment in a book,
I let seclusion dull me, I'm afraid.
Ah, that was—let me see—how long ago?
A dozen years at least have gone since then!
Are books still being published, and, if so,
Who is the latest wizard of the pen?

STRANGE how old memories will haunt one's brain!
There are a dozen names that I recall:
Du Maurier and Howells and Mark Twain,
And Lorna Doone—I used to read them all.
There was another—Stevenson, I think;
And David Harum—wasn't that the name?
I wonder if they still are wasting ink?
Or are they in the advertising game?

THE world was rather stupid in those days;
No jazz and not a single movie show;
No wonder men fell into quiet ways,
And stayed at home, a dozen years ago!
The chorus ladies were encased in tights;
Bare legs and naked spines were still taboo;
We had a reason to waste peaceful nights—
The fact is there was little else to do.

HOW lucky that a change has come! I fear
That I was growing solemn and sedate;
At my time many a man is fat and sere;
I found myself before it was too late.
The literary taste I had is gone,
I find a lively interest in life;
I'll hurry now to put a record on
And do the shimmy with my neighbor's wife.

New Romance of South Seas

THEY lived on Hillwa Dara Island—the girl, the boy, the girl's father, grandfather and aunt. No one else ever came, and the only men and women Dara ever saw were the score or so of black laborers who had come to the island with the family.

This is the setting for a fascinating new romance of the South Seas, written by Beatrice Grimshaw, author of "Vaiti of the Islands," "When the Red Gods Call," and other remarkable tales of love and adventure. It is illustrated in colors by Edmund Frederick.

The first instalment appears in the Magazine Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser this week. It is one of the best, most interesting stories of the year. Order your Boston Sunday Advertiser today.

Another name has been added to the list of attractive women of refinement, culture and breeding who have killed themselves in Paris as a result of disregard of the fundamental laws of morality and society and immoderate love of luxury and gayety. Florence Schenck, Mrs. Mabel Atherton, Mrs. Alma Vetsera Steane, the American princess de Chimay came to their deaths by their own hands.

Recently Mrs. Hallye Whatley Peck, wife of a prosperous young businessman, swallowed a fatal dose of poison. Like other women who have broken society's laws, she saw no refuge but death.

An article in the Magazine Section of the next Boston Sunday Advertiser tells the full story of Mrs. Peck's tragedy, and a review of those other stories, so similar in all but their minor details, which stand as a warning to pretty American girls intending to visit Paris.

Scientists have been studying pyromania, the peculiar disease which forces its victims, known as "firebugs," to set fires. Their subject has been Albert Smith, 19, of Fairhope, Pa., who has confessed setting the flames which destroyed thirty-five churches, school houses and farms in his neighborhood. His confession gives a curious idea of the workings of a mind diseased in this respect. From it medical men hope to work out some method of combatting the tendencies from which these unfortunate fire victims suffer.

I DON'T know.
IF IT'S because.
I'M GETTING old.
BUT THE last week.
I'VE BEEN nervous.
AROUND THE house.
AND I shouldn't be.
BECAUSE I'M house broke.
AND HAVE been married.
FOR YEARS and years.
AND KNOW all the things.
THAT MARRIED persons.
QUARREL ABOUT.
AND YET.
JUST A week ago.
WHEN MY wife sat down.
AND STARTED hemstitching.
AT TABLE napkins.
I SAID to her.
"I SHOULD think.
"THAT WORK like that.
"WOULD GET on your nerves."
AND WHATEVER she said.
I DON'T know.
BUT EVER since then.
SHE'S BEEN hemstitching.
AT TABLE napkins.
AND SOMEHOW.
IT SEEMS to me.
WHEREVER I go.
SHE FOLLOWS me.
AND HEMSTITCHES.
AND IF it happens.
I CAN'T see her.
I CAN hear the needle.
GO INTO the linen.
AND RIGHT now.
CLOSE TO my desk.
SHE'S HEMSTITCHING.
AND I haven't the heart.
TO TELL her.
TO GO on and get out.
AND MOW many napkins.
SHE'S GOING to stitch.
I DON'T know.
I THINK she's doing them.
FOR THE starving millions.
AND MR. Hoover.
AND I always supposed.
YOU BOUGHT the darn things.
ALREADY STITCHED.

I THANK you.

HYPOCRISY HALL HAS NUMEROUS TENANTS

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1921, by the Star Company.

I DREAMED a dream.

I dreamed, and, behold, I found myself in a building greater than the Pennsylvania Station, with thousands of people walking back and forth.

A wise-looking chap was standing near me smoking a big black cigar, Lod I spoke to him.

"What place is this?" I asked.

"Why," he said, apparently somewhat surprised at my question, "this is Hypocrisy Hall."

"Who are all these people?" I inquired.

"They're Hyocrites," he answered. "Some of them are very nice folks, too."

"It's a little crowded here," I suggested, finding myself jostled on every side.

"Well, yes, it's crowded," he said, "but, of course, there has been a lot of new business lately since the Volstead Act went into effect. We've opened several annexes, but somehow we never seem to have enough room. Our waiting list is growing every day."

"Who is that distinguished-looking gentleman in the top hat and frock coat?" I asked, pointing to a man who just passed.

"Why, that's Congressman Jones," said my informant. "He is one of our best known tenants. He voted for prohibition, but he has one of the largest private stocks of liquor in the State which he represents."

"And the lady in the large black hat?" I queried.

"I don't know her name," he replied. "She's one of quite a number here. She dresses herself in sables and diamonds, and rides in her limousine to meetings for the Amelioration of the Condition of Working Girls, but she underpays her maid.

"Here's an interesting character," he added, nudging me with his elbow to attract my attention to a powerfully built, elegantly dressed young man who was accompanied by a colored chap wearing a ragged red sweater.

"That's a champion prize fighter who draws the color line against negroes," said my mentor. "The black man with him is his sparring partner and taught the champion most of what he knows. You see," he said, "we have all kinds of people here. The population of Hypocrisy Hall is varied and cosmopolitan.

"The short fat man going yonder is one of the best known business men in this country," he continued. "During the war he served his country loyally for a dollar per year and got contracts worth millions to his company on the side."

"Why don't they put him in jail?" I demanded, indignantly.

"I don't know," was the reply. "You might ask that tall, severe-looking party going yonder. He is a just judge, and only yesterday he sent a fellow to jail for stealing several pounds of coal from one of our railroads."

"Pardon me," I said, excitedly, but who is this man here with the whiskers? He looks like an agriculturist. Surely you do not have farmers in Hypocrisy Hall?"

"Oh, yes," said my friend. "Yes, indeed. That particular man is a dairyman, who puts water in his milk. He has been a resident here for years. He goes to church regularly every Sunday."

"It's an interesting place all right, but it strikes me that the walls are a bit flimsy looking." I said, taking a critical glance around.

"Sh-h-h," he cautioned. "That's our contractor right behind you. He is a fine man, and contributes heavily to worthy charities, but he skimped a little on this job. And that's why the walls are apt to cave in any minute and kill a lot of people.

"By the way," he said, suddenly, "do you happen to have a cigar on your person? This one I'm smoking is on its last legs."

It so happened that I did have a cigar, and I handed it over to him and struck a match for him.

"I take it you are only a visitor here like myself," I said, as he puffed away at the weed. "How does it come you know so much about the people?"

"A visitor!" he said. "Oh, no. I am one of the permanent residents myself!"

"May I ask who and what you are?" I inquired, diffidently.

"Why, certainly," said my friend. "I am one of the overseers and a strong worker in the ranks of the Amalgamated Association for the Prevention of Pipe and Cigarette Smoking."

Under the Surface

WE envy other men who seem
To have so much that gives them pride:
But there is milk below the cream:
Mud makes the bottom of the stream;
The house may have a rotten beam
That looks so strong outside.

THE SINS OF THE STRONG VITIATE SOCIETY

By Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton,

Pastor Calvary Baptist Church, New York City.

THE real danger-point in our modern society is at the top and not at the bottom. The weaker elements of society are mere pawns in the game of life. To a large extent we are creatures of habit and slaves of style. The strong set the styles, and, therefore, they are primarily responsible where wrong conditions prevail.

The present reign of vice and crime in the world has come about in part because the weaker elements of society have seen so much grafting, proteering and dishonesty in the ranks of financiers, and even among nations, which ought to set a example of strict honesty in their diplomacy and all of their dealings, that individual ideals have been impaired and the moral stamina of the race all but shattered.

Diplomatic Duplicity

We have had illustrations of diplomatic duplicity, the repudiation of treaties, the confiscation of property, the stealing of art treasures, and even plain lying on the part of those who represented their nations—all of which things are violations of the most elemental laws of morality. With such illustrations of dishonesty and stealing at the very top, it is not at all surprising that we find an epidemic of stealing on a smaller scale sweeping over the whole earth.

One of the most pernicious doctrines ever promulgated is that which teaches that there is one code of morals for an individual and another, lower, code for business and diplomacy. This is a lie from hell and the devil is using it for all it is worth today.

Big Crooks and Little

We are making a great stir at the present time to round up the burglars and thugs and gangsters. We do well in all of this, and the editor of this column has faithfully tried to do his share; but let us not overlook the so-called "financiers"—who are really the descendants of the robber barons of the Middle Ages—and who steal upon a scale that runs into millions. What, at last, is the social benefit of imprisoning a degenerate, weak-minded thug, who holds up a single citizen and robs him of his pocketbook, while we let plutocratic profiteers and big business men get away with it when they wreck railroad systems and fleece the multitudes out of millions of money?

Silly Social Life

And what shall we say of the influence of the stronger elements in our modern society who set the pace in the styles of women's dress, dancing attendance upon evil plays and the other social and recreational customs of today? There is but one thing to say, and that is that these stronger elements of our society are responsible, at least, for the greater part of the moral rottenness which is spreading among the masses. We are born in this world to a social and not to a solitary existence, and the strong have a tremendous responsibility if they do not set a right fashion for those who are weaker and who look up to them for guidance and example.

The Contagion of Example.

The degenerate dances of today, for example, have been adopted by high society because they are considered "smart;" and then, because the many always follow the few, these customs spread right down the line until every silly girl in America, even in Podunk Centre and Possum Trot Crossroads, feels that she must tango and be bunny-hugged by men because, as she puts it, "They are all doing it—even in New York!"

And so it is with the other foolish fads and fashions of the day.

No stronger or more searching word was ever spoken than that utterance of Jesus of Nazareth:

"But whoso shall cause one of these little ones to stumble, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and that he were drowned in the depths of the sea."

The strong and the stylish of today need to take these solemn words most seriously to heart!

Stars and Stripes

Parents in whipping their children merely spank the physical symbol of their failure as parents.

Silly people often boast of meeting the great in revelry. Even a goose can meet a king at table.

We expect loyalty from friends; yet we put our greatest trust of friendship in the dollar that serves all and sundry, and will depart at the slightest provocation.

A small certainty is better than a great hope.

Envy is a disease of the mind that affects the heart and injures the sight.
